ALL CHECKING PROOFS OF

THEY'RE AT IT AGAIN

As was expected following the recent attempt on President Reagan's life during which he, his press secretary and two law enforcement officials were wounded, those who would "ban the gun" are at it again.

There are times we feel some of these people are just sitting back hoping that someone "in the public eye" will get shot, or worse yet, mortally wounded, in order to give them more "ammunition" (excuse the pun) to aid their ongoing crusade against the general public owning firearms. Before the smoke has even cleared they are coming "out of the woodwork" with their cries of "ban the handgun", "register all firearms" or "confiscate all weapons" owned by

Once again the legislation will be forthcoming in Congress as those who are opposed to the people's "right to bear arms" make their voices heard throughout the land. Gun-control backers, aghast at the attempted assassination of Reagan, have pledged to step up their efforts to get legislation through the Congress which they feel will be a deterrent to any future shootings.

Thankfully there are at least two bulwarks against the enacting of any laws that will strip the ordinary citizen of his handgun or long gun. One of course is the National Rifle Association, which has at its disposal one of the most powerful lobbies in Washington, and which has dedicated itself to the premise that any American citizen (who qualifies under present federal and state laws) is entitled to own and bear arms. They look upon the ownership of firearms as a constitutional right.

Secondly, and just as important, is the President himself. Despite being shot Reagan, in the aftermath of the attempted assassination, readily stated he is still opposed to gun control. Reagan campaigned for the presidency on his opposition to banning of guns and firearms registration and much to his credit the chief executive is "sticking to his guns."

A number of states as well as the District of Columbia have some of the toughest laws on firearms ever to "come down the pike." Yet these same states as well as D.C. also have the most crimes committed with a handgun. Henceforth it becomes pretty tough to rationalize how confiscation or registration of firearms would become a viable deterrent to crimes committed by persons with handguns in their

Any criminal, or potential criminal, who is bent on the commission of a crime and feels a gun is a necessity to the operation, will find the ways and means to obtain one. Enacting of more laws to relieve people of their guns would simply make this a nation of disarmed law-abiding citizens who would then by at the mercy of the criminal who, you can bet your bottom dollar, would have a gun in his possession.

In talking to Congressman Bill Clinger the other day he stated he felt that while undoubtedly there would be a number of bills presented in the Congress relevant to firearms, he doubted whether such legislation would be successful. He did note there is an increasing amount of support which would call for some type of legislation to ban the importing of 'parts" for weapons from foreign countries, adding many of these parts arrive in this country

The basic problem connected with crimes committed with firearms seems to be the judicial system. While there are laws "on the books" to cover just about every conceivable crime, the subsequent litigation which follows the apprehension of a criminal many times tends to be a long drawn out affair. Many who are nabbed are freed on bail, free to go out and commit another crime, perhaps more horrendous than the last. Many times those who are convicted are left off with a simple "slap on the wrist" type of sentence so to speak. Others who are successfully convicted and remanded to jail or prison make use of the endless appeals system. Then too, there is the criminal who receives a "stiff" sentence but due to "good behavior" is processed back into society within a short span of time.

The present laws have "teeth." Now if we could only get the "jaws to snap shut" perhaps there would be a reduction in crimes committed with firearms.

Personal And Corporate

Final Approval Given Bill Blocking State Income Taxes From Dropping

HARRISBURG (AP) - Moving with unusual speed, the House has given final approval to a bill that blocks the personal and corporate income taxes from dropping to lower levels for two more years.

Even House Minority Leader K. Leroy Irvis, who opposed the tax bill, said after the vote on Wednesday that he could not remember a tax measure ever being done so efficiently.

The bill was approved 102-97 and sent to Gov. Dick Thornburgh, who praised the quick action as a "major step" toward passing the 1981-82 state budget on time. Without the Legislature's vote, the 2.2 percent personal income tax and the 10.5 percent corporate income tax would have dropped automatically to 2 percent and 9.5 percent respectively on Dec. 31 The Senate sent the tax bill although House Republican leaders postponed action on Monday and Tuesday because they lacked enough votes, they got the bill approved on their first try Wednesday.

In a repeat of the Senate's vote on the tax bill last week. only Republicans in the House supported the legislation. In 1977, the Republicans strongly opposed boosting the income taxes to those same levels.

The taxes were raised to their current rates in 1977 in what was billed as a temporary increase. This is the second time the Legislature has voted to keep the taxes at the higher

Although Republicans said they were just voting to retain existing taxes, House Minority Whip James Manderino called the bill "a tax hike."

"The re-enactment of these The Senate sent the tax bill taxes is improper, unfair and to the House on April 22. And unnecessary," said Manderino,

Belief That Mobility Is Way To Executive Suite Is Called Myth

Associated Press Writer belief that mobility paves the readily frustrated and anxious way to the executive suite is a myth, says a University of Connecticut business professor.

John F. Veiga, a professor of management and administrative sciences, says that while a certain amount of mobility is necessary for advancement, moving regularly from one position to another does not always mean an executive is advancing.

Teacher's Goal: Develop Character

"You can teach a child many things in school, but the most important thing of all is the development of the student's character." That's the philosophy that motivated Mary Devereaux during her 40 years of teaching in the Boston school system. And that's the philosophy that still motivates her in retirement.

Out of the income from a special fund she established with money she earned while teaching, she distributes as many as 80 'character bonds' to deserving students every year. Candidates for the $50 awards are chosen by their principals.

Mary Devereaux attributes her interest in character development in part to Father Flanagan, founder of Boys Town and a distant cousin of hers. "When he visited with us, he often commented on the importance of character," she recalls

Now Mary Devereaux does the same, just as she did for her own students every year through 1965, when she retired. Farmland A Key American Resource When Secretary of Agriculture John Block was asked recently, Who are your constituents," he replied, "In a sense, it's the whole world - every man, woman and child who eats." Secretary Block, who maintained a large farm practically until the day he moved to Washington, is a soft-spoken man not given to idle chatter. And statistics show that his claim of a worldwide constituency is not loose talk.

At the end of the past decade, American farmers earned 1 of every 4 dollars from export sales, meaning that food products from 1 of every 3.5 acres planted were sent abroad. In the 1950s, exports accounted for only 1 of every 5.5 acres planted.

With the U.S. caught up in a mounting trade deficit, the boom in agriculture exports could not have been better times. We can expect demand from abroad for our agricultural products to continue easing the pain of our oil import costs. But, at the same time, concern is growing about the American farmland to continue to fulfill the vital role as breadbasket of the world.

Soil Conservation A Major Concern

As a finite resource, land is becoming more expensive as the demand from both agricultural and nonagricultural purposes escalates. Between 1967 and 1975, 3 million acres of farmland per year were converted to other uses, with about 1 million acres of that land considered prime farmland. This is land that will permanently serve purposes other than farming.

Another concern is the condition of the land available for agriculture. A certain amount of soil erosion is expected and, as a general rule, an acre of land can lose five tons of soil per year from erosion without permanent harm. But expers are saying that the erosion rate in many agriculture areas is far above tolerance. In Pennsylvania, the erosion figure totals 50.7 million tons of topsoil annually, according to the Pennsylvania Department of Agriculture. (That's enough, they say, to cover the entire City of Harrisburg with 5.5 feet of topsoil.)

This not news to Pennsylvania farmers, no doubt. With the federal government involved in soil conservation since the Depression, the matter has received a good deal of attention. But now, with the rising costs of fertilizer and land, farmers are If the vehicle is shown to be reevaluating the most popular means of boosting food production. And with the demand for food on the increase at the same time prime farmland is becoming scarce, methods for promoting soil conservation can be expected to look more attractive.

The question now is should the federal government play a larger role in soil conservation? With the proper role of government in the lives of Americans acting as a forum for a review of a broad range of government activities, Congress may take a look at several alternatives. And as a member of the Task Force on Agriculture as a part of the House Republican Research Committee, I will be in a position to make recommendations on this and other agriculture issues

One possibility worth considering is to offer incentives to farmers who meet conservation recommendations. But so far nothing has been decided except this: the land is a valuable resource and farmers are natural conservationists. Both must be a part of any approach not just to preserve family farms and an American tradition, but also to aid the humanitarian cause of world hunger and to bolster our position in international trade.

LOCAL AND AREA HAPPENINGS

Give Recognition To Hospital Volunteers

The Andrew Kaul Memorial Hospital joins with other organizations and communities across the nation in recognizing the services and achievements of volunteers during National Volunteer Week, April 27 - May 3. This week annually offers the opportunity to pause and publicly thank the millions of Americans who give of their time, talent and energy to serve others as volunteers. National Volunteer Week is also a time to encourage local citizens to become more actively involved in meeting the needs of the local hospital and other community agencies.

Fox Township Clean-Up Days Are May 9, 16

Clean-up Days in Fox Township are scheduled for Saturday, May 9, for Main Street from the Crossing to Fairview, all of the Million Dollar Highway, all developments along M.D.H., Brown's Road, and Irishtown Road-that is all of the East end of the township.

Saturday, May 16, Route 948 from the Crossing to Shelvey, Squab Hollow Road, Brandy Camp Road, Toby, Dagus Mines, Coal Hollow and Gardner Hill.

Items to be picked up would not be included in your weekly garbage collection and will be limited to those items that two men can load onto the truck. It is very obvious that a severe problem does exist throughout our community, as there has been much litter, garbage, rubbish, etc., that has been thrown along our roadways. There is a fine for such actions. Why not make a special effort to beautify our communities by helping to clean up the existing debris and then putting forth special effort in helping to Keep America Beautiful!

Sections of Irishtown Road and Toby Road were cleaned by local youth groups on April 25 and their efforts are greatly appreciated. Why not join in this cooperative effort and clean the surrounding property near your residence. By working together, we can once again make our community a beautiful place to live.

The Tennis Courts in the Community Park will now be open for use daily, weather permitting. A full summer recreational program is now being planned and will be for the entire family. The schedule for all activities will be announced

Delicious, Nutritious, Inexpensive Foods

Take An Egg On A Picnic Few picnic foods have the remarkable versatility of hardcooked eggs says Penn State Nutrition Aide Eleanor Byers. They come in their own packaging and can be enjoyed with little more added than a sprinkling of salt or an herb.

With only slightly more attention, they can become deviled eggs. Chopped, wedged, or sliced, they can be added to hot combination dishes or cold salad and sandwich mixtures. By themselves or as an "extender" for other protein foods, they'll lend both color and nutrition as they increase the number of servings. Hard-cooked egg slices or wedges make attractive, edible garnishes, too. Whatever their

Plan To Study Rate Of Cancer In Nanty Glo

HARRISBURG (AP) - A state health official says a task force will be set up to study the cancer rate in the borough of Nanty Glo in western Pennsyl-

Residents of the town of 4,000 residents did their own houseto-house survey to locate cancer cases because they felt the town had a high incidence of the disease.

After reviewing that survey, the Health Department said on Wednesday that, for most of the past decade, "the (cancer) rates are relatively high, but unfortunately not too different from the rates for many other

Pennsylvania communities." The report added, however, that "the very elevated rates for 1978 and 1980 warrant further investigation.' The cancer mortality rate for Nanty Glo in 1978 was 424 per 100,000, almost twice the statewide rate. In 1980, the Nanty Glo cancer death rate was 432 per 100,000; the statewide figures for that year are still being compiled. There is no cause for alarm but we want to make more sense out of the information we have," said Dr. Donald Reid, deputy health secretary for public health programs. Reid said that health officials would try to confirm the cancer statistics compiled by Nanty Glo residents and would probably do some case studies

Complain Decision Will Undercut Prices For Homes In Centralia

CENTRALIA, Pa. (AP) Local officials are complaining that a U.S. Interior Department decision will undercut home prices to be paid families forced to flee poisonous fumes from an underground mine fire.

The Interior Department last month agreed to a $1 million buyout and relocation program to help some 30 families immediately threatened by the underground mine fire.

However, the department reportedly has decided that its offers to buy homes will be based on the depleted values the fire has caused.

The Shamokin News Item quoted Interior Department spokesman Ed Essertier on Wednesday as saying officials have opted against the past practice of purchasing homes for what they would be worth if they were not in a town threatened with the mine fire.

Instead, Essertier said the department will judge the value of the home based on what it would bring on the open mar-

"I think it stinks," said Thomas Larkin, president of Concerned Citizens Against the Centralia Mine Fire.

'They're really putting it to can't understand the whole thing. It can really drive you nuts," said Edward Polites, the borough council president.

William Klink, director of the Columbia County Redevelopment Authority said the department's choice could have a serious effect on the prices homeowners receive under the federal program.

"I don't know what the aporaisals will come out at," said Klink, whose agency is assisting in the buyout. "You might be talking about half-price. I can see people up there saying, 'The hell with it. Don't appraise my property.'

Junior Editors' Quiz on-HORSESHOE PITCHING

QUESTION: What can you tell me about horseshoe

ANSWER: Horseshoe pitching is a game played by throwing metal horseshoes at an upright stake. Players score points depending on how the horseshoe lands in

The game is played on a court that is 50 feet long and 10 feet wide. The stake, one inch in diameter, is driven into the ground and stands 14 inches high. The stake is in the center of a six-foot square pitching box of clay in which the horseshoes land. The U-shaped horseshoe is a little over seven inches long and seven inches wide, and weighs about 2-1/2 pounds.

Players stand 40 feet (30 feet for women and children) from the stake when they pitch horseshoes. A shoe that encircles the stake so that a straight edge may close the open end without touching the stake is called a "ringer" and is worth 3 points. A shoe that rests against the stake when it lands is a "leaner" and counts as 1 point. Other points are scored depending on how close the shoes land

The game probably originated in ancient Rome about 2,000 years ago. A similar game, known as quoits, developed in 17th century Europe. Both games were brought to colonial America by the British.

Good News For Dental Patients May Is Available Mean A Changing Role For Dentists

BOSTON (AP) - That old advertising pitch - "Look, Ma, - has come true for millions of American children. Fluoridated water, better students this year. The Departtoothpaste and good care are making the piercing whine of the dentist's drill a worry of the past.

But the good news for patients may mean uncertain times and a changing role for the 448,000 men and women who make their livings repairing tooth decay.

Study after study in recent years has documented a remarkable improvement in the health of American teeth.

Fluoridated water, now available to about half of all Americans, is given much of the credit for conquering cavities. But a soon-to-be-published report shows a dramatic drop in tooth decay even in towns where the water is not fluoridated.

Between 1958 and 1978, Dr. Robert Glass examined the teeth of 1,776 children in the school systems of Norwood and Dedham, two Boston suburbs. In 20 years, he discovered a 50 percent drop in the number of decayed, filled and missing

Glass, a researcher at the Forsyth Dental Center in Boston, said he found the statistics because neither 'amazing' town had fluoridated water during that period. He attributed the change to fluoride toothpaste and mouthwash, more emphasis on brushing and flossing and the introduction of high-speed drills that have improved the quality of dentists'

The National Institute of Dental Research in Bethesda, Md., has noticed similar changes. Dr. William Bowen, chief of the institute's Caries Prevention and Research Branch, is overseeing a nationwide study of 49,000 children who live in both fluoridated and non-fluoridated

The results are not all in yet, but Bowen predicts they will show a 25 to 30 percent reduction in cavities in the past 10 vears alone.

The institute also is working on a cavities vaccine that Bowen says could be introduced within the next decade. It, too, would help eliminate cavities. For dentists, cavities are big business. In 1979, Americans spent $3.7 billion on fillings, or about 27 percent of the nation's total dental bill.

The loss of a large part of this work may force a reduction in the dentist workforce.

"I think there will probably be a gradual decline in the (of dentists) renumbers quired," Bowen said. "But not for several years yet. The kind of work will shift. The traditional forms of treatment are certainly in less demand."

At Forsyth, a private research institution, director John Hein says an oversupply of dentists is a definite possibility. "I think the drop in cavities...may well eventually result in a need for less dentists," he said.

Pedodontists, dentists who specialize in children's dental care, are already feeling the Pedodontists used to figure that they needed 1,500 to 2,000 children for a practice," Hein said. "Now it's closer to 6,000 or 8,000 children. A number of pedodontists are taking additional training to incorporate orthodontics into their practice. And dental schools are having a hard time in some parts of the country finding enough children to provide work to train the dental students.'

Information On Headaches

Have you ever had a headache so painful that you could practically hear the throbbing? Headaches can be miserable, and sometimes, you can't do anything else until the pain is gone.

There are many different Periodontal disease erodes causes of headaches such as tension, infection, nasal disorder. know what symptoms to watch for, so you can decide when to consult your doctor, for your copy of the Formicola says dentists need Department of Health and to keep regular check on the Human Services booklet, progress of the disease, instruct Headaches. Send $1 to the Conpatients on good flossing and sumer Information Center, Dept. brushing habits and occasion-149J, Pueblo, Colorado 81009.

A headache can be a symptom of a more serious condition, so don't mask recurring headaches with medication. Instead, if you have any of these symptoms, it's wise to check with your doctor. Some of the headaches which are alarm signals for a prompt medical check up are: sudden, severe headaches; headache associated with convulsions or fever: headache accompanied by confusion or lessening of consciousness: headache following a blow on the head, and headache associated with local pain in the eye, ear or elsewhere.

Oddly enough, studies show that the brain tissue doesn't feel pain from direct stimulation, nor does bone of the skull. But, other parts of the head are sensitive to pain, such as scalp, blood vessels. and some of the brain coverings.

For example, there are certain common types of headaches you can afford. The weekend headache can be a result of your hurring in an extra push to finish Friday work, followed by too much let down. Try easing your schedule before the weekend, and get up for regular meals on Saturday and Sunday, even if you rest later.

Leisure should add joy and fun to life, but an overexciting social life can be full of hidden headache hazards. Smoke, bad ventilation, lack of sleep and too much alcohol invite headaches.

Boredom headaches are the opposite side of the coin. Activities that provide a moderate change in routine may actually help prevent this type. The coffee-hunger headache will hit heavy coffee drinkers if they miss a usual cup. You can get relief from another cup or eating a caffein (stay awake) tablet. However, it's best to cut down on coffee consumption gradually, so you won't suffer coffee hunger headache.

Hangover headaches involves physical factors, such as the swelling of blood vessels, a tolerance to alcohol which varies greatly in different people, and an apparent sensitivity to chemical by-products of some drinks. The only surefire treatment is to drink less or stop drinking. Rest, aspirin or a combination pain-reliever, and a stimulant such as coffee restores many people.

Excessive use of sedatives, even sedatives for treatment of headache, can be dangerous and might cause a headache. Don't take large amounts of painkillers than your doctors orders. Don't take sedatives more often or over a longer period than your doctor orders.

Careless home use of household and garden chemicals can cause a headache. Read the directions carefully and follow the warnings against skin contact and inhaling of household and garden chemicals.

Headache and constipation are separate results of tension. fatigue or disrupted routine. There is no scientific evidence that constipation causes headache

WORRIES ABOUT THREATS - Dominic Manno, who wrote that he wished for the death of President Reagan in a column he writes for the Daily Pennsylvanian, a college newspaper in Philadelphia, says he now worries that someone may be wishing the same for him. CBS Lists Top Five Shows To Win Rating Race

NEW YORK (AP) - CBS entered the rerun portion of the 1980-81 prime-time season in the week ending April 26 in full stride, claiming the five highest-rated shows and six of the first 10, figures from the A.C. Nielsen Co. showed.

CBS' average rating for the period was 16.7, to 16 for ABC and 14.2 for NBC. Nielsen says that means in an average prime-time minute during the week, 16.7 percent of the nation's homes with television were tuned to CBS. A repeat of CBS' "Dukes of Hazzard" was the week's highest-rated show, with a second episode from the same series pre-empting "Dallas" the runnerup. The rating for the No. 1 show was 24. Nielsen says that means of all the country's TV-equipped homes, 24 percent saw at least part of the episode.

ABC's "Three's Company" was the highest-rated non-CBS. program, in sixth place, with NBC's "Diff'rent Strokes" seventh. CBS had the only two original programs in the week's Top 10 - "Private Benjamin" in fourth place and "Nurse" tied for eighth.

NBC's last-place finish was the network's eighth in a row, though the picture was not entirely bleak. "NBC Magazine," a flop in the ratings all season, opposite the year's No. 1 show, CBS' "Dallas," more than doubled its rating in a new Thursday night slot. The rating for "Magazine, in the No. 26 position, was 17.5, compared with the 24 for the week's No. 1 show.

A Different Kind Of Reader 'Thank You'

DEAR READERS:

Yesterday I spent a whole column on a lovely "Thank you" letter from a correspondent... and felt a bit guilty because we normally shy away from self-promotion.

Today, another kind of "plug," the backhanded variety we're more comfortable printing. Forthwith:

DEAR HELEN AND SUE:

My apologies, please Quite a while back I wrote you seeking advice about my badly crumpled life. I raved on over my sacrifices and how life was unjust to me. And I was not thrilled with your column-reply to me. You indicated that I was not putting the blame on the right person, namely myself. You also told me to seek counsel.

Well, I was unable to get therapy, but I took the bull by the horns and helped myself, going through a new awareness I'd never had before.

Beautiful things can transpire when you find the spirit and ability to make them happen. At one time I was my own worst enemy: I was foolish not to realize that I and only I was driving me down deeper each day.

There's a whole new world now for me, and I can accept challenges wherever I choose.

The thanks I have for you is that your reply infuriated me enough to make me do something about myself. All the rest of the credit goes to me! — ONE HAPPY PERSON

We're happy we made you mad enough to accept our challenge. May your life be mostly up from now on.

Thanks for reminding our readers that people can change for the better without professional help — if they find "the spirit and ability to make it happen." - SUE

DEAR HAPPY PERSON:

Had you sent a stamped self-addressed envelope, rather than an anonymous letter, our personal reply would have softened and explained our brief column answer.

Nevertheless, it worked. Thanks for telling us you're no longer furious with. — HELEN AND SUE

DEAR RAP:

You recently printed a letter signed "Curious and a Little Suspicious" about some children who were wondering why their father's blood type was different from theirs. I have one possible explanation.

I too was curious. I wondered why I was the only child of four with an overbite, and one of my sisters had several extra teeth when no one else did. I knew there was no hanky panky for Mom or Dad, but how do you explain a blue-eyed blond mother and a father with curly dark hair and brown eyes having four children with blue eyes and straight blonde hair (both, according to my biology books, recessive traits)?

Dad finally told me last year that all four of us are probably the product of artificial insemination. It was quite a shock at first but suddenly a lot of odd pieces fit into place.

I love my father more than ever and cannot imagine the courage it took to agree on my mother's pregnancies by other men. How they must have wanted us!

My natural father has given me the gift of life, but without both my parents, I wouldn't have been me. - HALF ADOPTED BUT WHOLLY THANKFUL

GOT A PROBLEM? Or a subject for discussion, two generation style? Direct your questions to either Sue or Helen Bottel — or both, if you want a combination mother-daughter answer — in care of this newspaper.

Cobb Resources Leads List Of "The Inc. 100"

By JOHN CUNNIFF AP Business Analyst

NEW YORK (AP) - If a company's sales grew 366,567 percent in five years, as the sales of Cobb Resources did. it should make somebody's list. It does. It leads "The Inc. 100."

The Inc. 100 is unlike the Fortune 500, which is Fortune magazine's list of the 500 largest U.S. companies. Inc. is a magazine of "smaller companies," and its list is based not on sales but on sales growth.

That's why Cobb, a mining company based in Albuquerque, N.M., heads the list with sales of only $11 million. In 1976, the base year for measuring companies on the Inc. list, it sales were $3,000.

Its compound annual rate of away from the others. In second place, DSI Corp., a Nash-Tenn., company that transfers computer data onto microfilm or microfiche, grew 606 percent a year, or 248,224 percent in five years.

Of even greater significance than sales may be the job-producing consequences of sales. Smaller businesses, rather than the mature giant corporations, often are the job creators of American society.

The work force of the top 500 industrials, writes Bradford Ketchum, Jr., who supervised compilation for Inc. climbed only 12 percent, but the work force of the 100 smaller companies leaped 663 percent.

This didn't surprise him, because earlier studies showed something similar. A House committee in 1978, for instance, said that between 1969 and 1976 "small businesses accounted for what can be considered virtually all the new private sector employment in this coun-

PITTSBURGH (AP) pregnant prisoner, who was de-nied a brief furlough from Allegheny County Jail to have an abortion, has been sentenced to 11½ to 23 months in a state

Mary Lou Fedak, 35, of Pittsburgh was sentenced Wednesday following her convictions on shoplifting charges.

Earlier this month, a county judge denied Ms. Fedak's request for a temporary leave so she could travel, under guard, to a women's health center for an abbortion. She appealed the ruling to Superior Court. However, since then, she has changed her mind and decided to deliver the child.

None of the 25 U.S. presidents from John Quincy Adams to Woodrow Wilson made an appearance before Congress. Woodrow Wilson broke the long precedent when he addressed a joint session of Congress - determined to lead in legislation and to use all of his presidential powers.

OED

My husband and I saw an ad several years ago about "pre-need" funeral contracts from Crestlawn Cemetery (of Riverside, Cal.). A representative came out to discuss it with us and in November, 1974, we signed a contract, paying a total of $950.

Lately, we heard the company was in legal trouble, so we decided not to be cared for by Crestlawn. We would rather be buried in our home town and are anxious to make some permanent arrangements. Both of us are retired, though we currently operate a small art shop.

We would like to get back what we paid Crestlawn. Last December, we wrote the state District Attorney handling the Crestlawn case, but have received no reply.

Crestlawn's court-appointed receiver has returned your payment in full after obtaining "quit claim" papers from you renouncing the

Scott McCormac, the owner of the cemetery and another firm, Valley Oaks Cemetery of Thousand Oaks, Cal., has been charged with the misuse of money obtained from pre-need contracts with those firms, according to state attorney Robert Lewis. As the result of court suits by state and county authorities, Crestlawn has been in receivership for two years, he said.

Like many other states, California requires cemeteries and mortuaries to put pre-need money into trust funds until death occurs, at which time it is released and used for the funeral arrangements contracted for.

McCormac was accused of appropriating nearly $600,000 in trust fund money for personal and business expenses, according to the District Attorney's office, which said at least 5,000 people were Crestlawn's receiver, James Brown is attempting to sell the cemetery so that it can continue in business and honor its contracts, according to Lewis. More information and quit claim forms can be obtained from Brown, c/o Crestlawn Memorial Park Assn., 11500 Arlington Ave., Riverside, Cal., 92054.

Grand theft is not the only problem which has arisen with preneed funeral and burial contracts, according to sources familiar with the funeral industry. Although such contracts may be a way to save costs and trouble for relatives at the time of bereavement, they often have pitfalls, the sources say. The Federal Trade Commission, which has conducted an extensive investigation of the funeral industry since 1972, says it found some pre-need contracts with clauses that effectively release the funeral director from any obligation to furnish the arrangements agreed upon. Some people sign contracts when they are too young, later move and are unable to be buried as planned. One organization told of a 27-year-old woman who purchased a burial plot and then did not know what to do with it when she left town. "We recommend pre-arranging but not pre-paying," said Betty Clemmer of the Continental Association of Funeral and Memorial Societies, a non-profit group which provides members with information about simple, dignified and inexpensive funeral ser-

Clemmer said her organization has received an increasing number of complaints about pre-need services. Elderly person worried about inflation seem to be especially attracted to the idea, she said, and in some cases pre-need contracts may be beneficial for them. But, she added, anyone considering a pre-need contract should first consult a lawyer. For a stamped, addressed envelope, the Continental Assn. will provide information on funerals and a list of local memorial societies. Its address is 1828 L St., N.W., Washington, D.C., 20036.

Coin Dealer Finds Change For Dollar

In January, I sent $1 to Littleton Stamp & Coin Co. Inc. of Littleton, N.H., for a semi-vintage penny, nickel and dime. Three weeks later, I received a catalog, but no coins.

The company has not acknowledged a letter of complaint.

Littleton has sent your three coins.

The company said the catalog was mailed "to signify that (your) request arrived safely and is being processed." The company bills itself as an "internationally known leader" in the coin and stamp collecting fields and a "forerunner in cordial customer contacts." The Better Business Bureau in Concord, N.H., says Littleton has

It is hard to believe that Pennsylvania's hunters are set to begin their fourteenth spring gobbler season. I can remember the first one. At that time if you killed a turkey in the fall you were not allowed to kill one in the spring. So, I carried the call only instead of a shotgun. My hunting partner had the privilege of doing the shooting. We wore our regular duck brown hunting togs. No camouflage. It didn't seem to make much difference then.

An hour after that first season opened we had heard nine different gobblers and I had called in four. My friend missed one, but we waited a few minutes and called another in. He killed it. We never heard or saw a sign of another hunter.

Along with our opening day experience there were other hunters who later reported gobblers that ran or flew directly to them after they had made a couple of yelps on the call. As for calls, there was no mystery or sophistication involved. Any call that made a reasonable hen yelp would work Fellas who had never called a turkey before were calling in gobblers. Auto Assembly Lines Are Symbolic Of American Work, U.S. Products tomobile assembly line seems to symbolize American work and American products. Here, in the last of a three-part series, is a look at life on the line in Tarrytown, N.Y.

Auto sales are down, but the demand for General Motors' front-wheel-drive X-cars remains strong, and X-cars are what this 97-acre plant overlooking the Hudson River turns

The Tarrytown plant is one of about 120 GM manufacturing, assembly and storage facilities across the nation; it is one of three plants which produce Xcars. During 1980, the workers at Tarrytown assembled 287,195 X-cars, about 7 percent of GM's total output and 41/2 percent of all U.S.-built automobiles. Approximately 5,000 people work at the plant; 4,500 of them are hourly employees, who earn just over $19 an hour - half of it in fringe benefits, half in

The Tarrytown plant is the place General Motors picked in the early 1970s to introduce its "Quality of Work Life" program designed to improve the automobiles by improving the conditions for the men and women who built them.

Casual absenteeism - workers who simply don't show up in contrast to those who are on vacation or formal sick leave has dropped from about percent to just under 3 percent. Management encourages sug gestions from employees and says at least 25 percent of the ideas are accepted.

Ray Calore, president of United Auto Workers local 664 representing the assembly line employees at the plant, said: "There's room for improve ment, but with the work force we have and the management we have, we have an ideal situation.'

The first thing that strikes your eye at you walk from the executive offices to the plant floor itself is a huge sign 'Quality is our mentor." The second thing you spot is a man on a bicycle

The sign reminds the workers of what the company says is a commitment to quality. The bicycle makes it easier for repairmen to get around the sprawling plant to fix any problems before a car leaves the assembly line.

"As far as the management is concerned, the quality of the product is the number one priority," said Don DeVoto, quality director at the plant.

Asked how many of the cars fail the key start-up test near the end of the assembly line, when a worker gets in the car and tries to start the engine, DeVoto paused. "It's so rare when one doesn't start,"

Believe it or not, you, the advertiser, still have plenty to cheer about today. You live within a free enterprise system that permits competition and allows you freedom to stimulate the flow of goods and services in the face of any economic obstacles.

Yes, you hold the key to keeping the economy strong and giving it direction.

By maintaining and even increasing your advertising budget during business down-swings, you not only maximize your own chance for stability and growth . . . you also create the sales that provide payrolls, profits, taxes and all else needed to keep the economy moving.

It wasn't dumb luck or some mystical force that created your past successes — it was you . . . your ability to make things happen, supported by a strong advertising schedule that worked.

Even in the face of bleak economic forecasts the same holds true; the more you sell the more you WILL sell.

And that's the kind of appreciation that will really make you cheer.

Announce The Honor Roll At Area High School

Dr. Gary L. Russell, principal of St. Marys Area High School, is pleased to announce the Honor Roll for the fifth marking period.

The Honor Roll is based on the student's ability to maintain a 90 percent average for all subjects. However, if a student has a grade or grades below 86 percent, then for each grade point below an 86 percent he or she must have achieved an additional point on his or her average.

Therefore, a student with an 84 percent must achieve a 92 percent average in order to be considered for the Honor Roll. Students are excluded from the Honor Roll if they are not carrying five full-time subjects, or if they have received a grade less than 77 percent in any sub-

The bidding: West North East Pass Pass 1 • 24 Pass

Opening lead - king of

There are no magic rules to guide you to the best opening lead, and often the wrong choice will produce a disastrous result. Consider this deal where South got to six clubs doubled. Perhaps East should have opened three spades, which might have shut the opponents out of the bidding. Instead he started with one spade, permitting North-South to get together in clubs.

West's spade lead was very doubtful, for he should have realized that North's cuebid was on the level and that a spade lead would accomplish nothing. Whether West should have led a diamond or a heart is debatable - without seeing all four hands — but his actual lead proved fatal.

Declarer ruffed the spade in dummy and led the queen of clubs, East following low. South made a good guess by going up with the ace and leading five rounds of hearts, discarding all his diamonds in the process.

West ruffed the fifth heart, but that was the only trick for the defense. As a result, declarer made the slam, scoring 1,660 points — instead of going down one, 200 points, which would have been his portion had West led a diamond originally.

Had West realized that a spade lead was wrong, he might have led a heart - in which case declarer would still have made the contract. But then again, West might have led a diamond - in which case the slam would have failed. His actual lead, a spade, could produce only a negative since North was bound to be void of spades whereas a diamond or heart lead had a good chance to produce a positive result. In effect, West's spade lead misfired, because he failed to eliminate the negative and accentuate the positive.

A simple coating on the lens of eyeglasses is expected to save 50,000 Americans from developing cataracts each year. One type of cataract is caused by the absorption of too much ultraviolet light, a component of sunlight, causing the lens of the eye to turn brown, cutting out all light. It is estimated that 500,000 cataract operations are performed annually and 10 percent of the cataracts are the sunlight type. The new coating would eliminate this type of cataract and the coating can be worn comfortably indoors and

St. Joseph's Convent St. Marys, Pa. 15857

Mr. James A. Dippold The Daily Press St. Marys, Pa. 15857

Dear Mr. Dippold, If you believe, as I do, that Marty's letter will not only be an inspiration to others, but will also be a confirmation of the power of prayer, will you kindly publish the letter? If possible, April 30th?

Personally, I believe that too many of us do not possess the Faith which trusts God completely. Some of us never learned the truth that if God is with us, and we are on His side, we can accomplish much for Him and our fellowmen.

What the world needs today, is more men, women too, of Marty's

Needless to say, I am very proud of Marty, one of my former English students, who is a source of great pride and joy to his dear Mother and to all who know him.

Marty is the son of Mrs. M. Hammer of Ridgway Road. Thanks a million for your kind consideration

Sister M. Evangelist, OSB

Gratefully in Jesus and Mary,

Major M. A. Hammer RRG P.O. Box 1500-A Huntsville, Alabama 35807 April 18, 1981

Dear Sister Evangelist,

The day I left St. Marys to return to Alabama after Christmas you promised to pray for me. That night, while traveling along the Interstate Highway in Virginia, I had occasion to stop three times to help stranded motorists. I could not help but believe that your prayers were at work, as I offered assistance and went for help.

On a more recent trip to Mississippi, there was a group of blacks in a van stranded along the Interstate-and again at night. As we drove through rural Mississippi looking for service stations that were open-and even finally in junkyards-trying to find an odd-sized tire with rim, I began to suspect that you might still be saying an occasional prayer for me.

Both trips reminded me of a picture I once saw as I was growing up. It was a photograph of a statue of Christ with both hands broken off-which was taken as American troops moved through France during World War II. In front of the statue someone had placed the sign: "I have no hands but yours".

To me, there is an analogy between Sisters living in the convent and the Christ with no hands. You are somewhat restricted in your travels and in the nature of the good you can do yourselves. In those areas where you are restricted, the good you would like to do can find expression only in those for whom you pray.

For your prayers, I thank you, Sister. For you and for all the Sisters of St. Joseph's who are trying to reach "beyond the convent walls", please know that these hands are willing.

SPRING GOBBLER SEASON

Pennsylvania's 14th Spring Gobbler Hunting Season will get underway on Saturday, May 2, one-half hour before sunrise and will end on Saturday, May 23. In recent years, normal nesting activities during spring months have been delayed by cold, wet weather, generally resulting in a slow start during the scheduled spring

According to the reports from many of the game protectors the winter months were not too hard on the birds which should provide for some exciting hunting during the Spring season. The Game Commission has designed the Spring Gobbler Season to make maximum use of a renewable resource. After breeding has occurred, gobblers have fulfilled their primary purpose and they then become "excessive baggage" and expendable in the overall turkey picture.

The Commission urges hunters to be more conscious of safety requirements during the Spring season. A bird, to be legal, must have a beard. If the hunter positively identifies the beard, there can be no possibility of anyone being shot in mistake for a turkey.

Bucs Bound To Three Rivers Until Year 2011

PITTSBURGH (AP) - An attorney for the Pirates said bankruptcy is inevitable for the National League baseball team if it has to honor a 30-year lease at Three Rivers Stadium. But at a hearing Wednesday on the Pirates' attempt to break the agreement, an attorney for stadium bondholders told Allegheny County Judge Joseph Del Sole that a "hell and high water" clause binds the team until the year 2011. Walter McGough, representing Mellon Bank as the bondholders' trustee, said the clause allows the Bucs to leave only in cases of war, eviction or condemnation of the stadium. Team attorney H. Woodruff Turner rebutted the argument.

The Pirates recently sued to break the lease, claiming the club is losing money and can't afford to maintain the $35 million, publicly financed structure as required by the agreement. "The losses have been ruinous, and (the Pirates) are insolvent," Turner said. "Absent some form of relief, bankruptcy is inevitable."

The team owners claim they've lost $7 million since 1970 and would lose $100 million over the next 30 years. Del Sole postponed a deci-

Feldbauer Team Won Co-Ed V-Ball Event

The saying goes; "after the dust had cleared, one team remained." The saying held true this past weekend, but it was after a lot of dust and a lot of sweat that one team emerged as the lone victor in the ECCHS coed volleyball tourney. Being led by their co-captains, Lori and Bob Feldbauer, the Johnsonburg based team became the first team in the brief two-year history to complete the three day tournament without a loss. Coming in 2nd last year, the Feldbauers were not to be denied the 1st place finish. Taking a clean sweep in the winners bracket with 5 wins and defeating Wortman Construction in the Championship Match for a perfect 6-0 record.

Randy's and Marty Herbstritt's Wortman Construction met Captain Jim Wortman's team in the finals of the Losers' Bracket. Jim's team won the first game 15-3 but, lost the 2nd 12-15; forcing a deciding 3rd game. Randy and Mary Jo Wortman, assisted by Mike, Chrissy, and Elaine Vogt, along with Bud Trevino, Kite and Rogers have a history of success here. All finished in the top seven last year.

The course this season is lined by extremely deep, difficult rough, which places a premium on accuracy. And Trevino, Kite and Rogers are among the more accurate players in the game.

'Man, you get it off the fairway and you've got no chance reaching the green," said Trevino, a playoff loser in this tournament a year ago.

'The rough is like (U.S.) Open rough. And I like it," he said. "That's the kind of course I like to play."

Curtis Strange is the defending champion. Although he has yet to win this season, he's played well most of the year and won more than $100,000, while finishing second in one event and third in two others. Other standouts include John-
