The Pennsylvania potato crop is estimated at 24,303,000 bushels, or 81 per cent. of normal conditions. The estimate is about 300,000 bushels higher than a month ago, but 1,200,000 bushels below estimates of the crop made last winter.

Because of weather conditions it is likely that Bucks county's corn crop will not mature and dry out before cold weather arrives and that artificial drying will have to be carried out to get the benefit of the crop.

Cyrus Gingrich Now Making Cotton Seed Oil
Editor Hershey Press, Conway, Ark., Hershey, Pa. Oct. 17, 1924.
Dear Sir:
Your paper is such a good medium for keeping in touch with the home folks that I feel I must write you again as I receive quite a few letters from my friends up there because they see my address in the Hershey Press and otherwise I could not keep in touch with them.
Since my last letter I have obtained employment in a cotton seed oil mill and it would surprise you to see the different processes the cotton and the seed are put through to make the finished product.
First, the cotton is ginned, which is done by two sets or series of circular saws, which take the cotton from the seed, then it is baled in hydraulic presses and sold to the buyer. The seed is hauled to the oil mill where it is delinted and all the lint saved. Then it is hulled, then crushed and the oil extracted by means of powerful hydraulic presses, after which the oil is used for making substitutes for lard, also oleomargarine and for substitutes for linseed oil in paint. The hulls are sold for the purpose of feeding stock.
This is a very fine country and land averages pretty near what it does up there, according to location.
We raise great quantities of watermelons, canteloupes, muskmelons, apples, peaches and pears.
The Hershey chocolates are sold extensively in this country and everybody knows about them.
Hoping this will be the means of letting my many friends know about me, and asking you to send me a copy of the Press, I remain,
Yours respectfully,
Cyrus R. Gingrich,
Box 443, Conway, Ark.

FOLLIES OF AGE BLAMED PARENTS BY "SEVENTEEN"
A Martin Landis, the 17-year-old boy orator, of Harrisburg, spoke on Monday evening to a group of his friends and admirers, at 25 cents each, on the subject of "The Follies of Youth." He spoke learnedly of the social conditions of the country, spiritual poverty, etc., and declared the older generation was responsible for the antics of the youth of today.
The lack of discipline in the home today, the absence of religion, the stressing of financial standing rather than character as a mark of success, the deadening influence of this materialistic age, all help to bring out the baser side of the youth of the land rather than the more spiritual side.
"Careless and indifferent parents are responsible for the joy rides and petting parties we hear so much about," declared Landis.
Landis graduated at Technical High School last year, and before that from the Reily and Camp Curtin schools.
E. S. Woodring, presiding elder of the Reading and Harrisburg districts, delivered an address on "100 Per Cent. United Evangelicals" at a meeting of the Schuylkill Valley Ministerial Association at Reading on Monday. Dr. Woodring assailed "putting the soft pedal on sin, winking at worldliness and trusting in numbers and money," and suggested that the Church "shut up shop" rather than approve them.
S. P. Nissley and D. M. Stauffer, of Mt. Joy, returned last week from a 25,000-mile trip by automobile.
Jefferson is the first county in Pennsylvania to have all its cattle tested for tuberculosis. In Mercer and Crawford Counties all but a fraction of one per cent. of the cattle has been tested.
A bus line is contemplated from York to Lancaster and from Lancaster to Harrisburg.

PREDICT SMALL AND POOR APPLE YIELD
Commercial apple crops in Cumberland and Perry Counties, which are among the large producing counties in the State, are far below the State average this year, and reported in very poor condition. Each of these counties in normal years produce more than 10,000 bushels of apples, but this year the Cumberland County crop is estimated at twenty-six per cent. of normal, and the Perry County crop at only thirteen per cent. of normal. The average condition of commercial apple crops in twenty-two leading counties is estimated at thirty-six per cent. of normal this year, a decrease of five per cent. from estimates a month ago, and twenty-three per cent. below the condition of the crop a year ago.
In Dauphin County, however, which produces less than 10,000 bushels in a normal year, the condition of the commercial crop is estimated at fifty per cent. The Dauphin crop ranks among the highest conditions of the counties which produce less than 10,000 bushels normally.

DAUPHIN COUNTY ORDERS DISEASE-FREE POTATOES
Orders are being taken by the Dauphin County Agricultural Extension Association for disease-free seed potatoes for early and late planting.
Irish Cobbler is the early variety and Michigan Russets is the late variety being ordered in carload lots for Dauphin County farmers, who are being urged to send their orders at once to County Agent R. R. Burtner. Six cars were brought into the county last fall.
One car of cobbler and one car of russets will be shipped to Harrisburg for distribution under the direction of E. B. Mitchell, Harrisburg, R. D. 3. A car of russet seed will be shipped to Swatara Station, where the distribution will be made by John Curry. The cars are scheduled for arrival between the middle and end of November.

The commissioners agreed to assist the Lower Swatara Township supervisors in repairing the road.
