Plymouth Hill Withdraws Protest of New School

against the Plymouth Township School Board was withdrawn today by the Plymouth Hill Civic Association in order to avoid any possible delay it might cause in the construction of a new 30-room elementary school to be built on Plymouth Rd., near Johnson High-

But after the complaint was withdrawn, James Martino, president of the Civic Association, told this newspaper:

"We want to make it clear that we have withdrawn the protest "adequate enough" and charged struction schedule for the school. We are still not satisfied with the final action that was taken by the school board."

The final action was taken at the April meeting of the school board when it was unanimously decided to use Red Rowen Lane as a second entrance to the new elementary school.

The Civic Association had fought plans for the added driveway since October when they stated that the entrance off Plymouth Rd. is the school board with acting "as if education is the primary thing rather than giving first consideration to the safety of 400 Plymouth Hill children."

Martino said that the modern trend is to channel traffic on through roads, not into residential developments.

"There are no through streets in our development," Martino said. "Hundreds of Plymouth Hill children would be walking to and from school every day and the added traffic would be a hazard to preschool children who are used to playing in a quiet, low traffic | possible that most bus traffic would community.

"With the coming of a second entrance, we can expect three to six buses a day going through our community. This could result in as many as 24 trips a day.

"We recently received a letter from the school board in response to our various requests for reasons why they want to use the road entrance from Red Rowen Lane and their proposed uses for it.

"But we got no new information from them except for a non-committing statement that 'it is highly be routed via Johnson Highway or Plymouth Rd'."

The main reasons that the school board had given for the Red Rowen Lane entrance were:

1. A school of this size, one of the largest in Pennsylvania, needs a secondary access.

2. Since the State Highway Dept. is sometimes slow in clearing snow from Plymouth Rd., the school might be opened earlier by routing all buses and traffic through Plymouth Hill to the Red

Dump Fires Ignite Ire In Miquon

A sweeping accusation charging the Miquon Development Co. with creating a health and fire hazard in its "sanitary" landfill operation was leveled against the company Thursday night at the regular meeting of the Whitemarsh Board of Supervisors by a Democrat committeeman and a former Republican committeewoman, who live in the area.

Richard Burgess, 18 Hart's Lane accused the company of:

1. Leaving refuse uncovered at night.

2. Letting an open fire burn continuously on the property.

3. Allowing "tremendous heaps of paper and cardboard to clutter on the property and doing nothing to keep the papers from blowing all over Miquon."

4. Allowing unsanitary conditions to exist which have caused the side of the hill to be "loaded with rats and everything else."

Miss Marsha Simpson, also of Hart's Lane, backed Burgess' charges and added:

1. There are two spots there that "I know haven't been covered in a month,"

2. "I have seen the headlights of trucks leaving the property at four in the morning."

3. There is a "fire there every night, all night long, which has burned for a month.'

"Isn't there any ordinance in the township which requires them cover refuse?" Miss Simpson asked.

Willard E. Hargreaves, township secretary-treasurer said that the requirement to cover refuse "comes under the rules and regulations of the State Department of Health which requires a six inch fill after every day."

Jack Kendree, chairman of the board of supervisors, said that the problem is basically the township's responsibility, and not the State's.

He instructed William E. Lightkep, township health officer, to ask State officials to accompany him on an inspection of the landfill operation. Kendree also told William L. Huganir, board solicitor, to take "immediate steps if the landfill is not legal."

Ministers Sponsor Baccalaureate Service For P-W Students Despite Board Ruling

Despite a ruling by the Plymouth-Whitemarsh Joint School Board that it cannot legally sponsor Baccalaureate service, the program will be held as usual for high school students on Sunday, June 7, at 3 p.m. in the high school auditorium.

The Baccalaureate will be sponsored by the Ministers' Council of Plymouth and Whitemarsh townships which applied to the Joint School Board to rent the auditorium shortly after the Board ruled that it could not be the sponsor.

Students, parents and friends will be invited to the service on

Rev. Harold F. Doebler, minister of St. Peter's Lutheran Church, will be speaker. Others participating in the service are the Rev. Wallace Hustad, minister of the Messiah Methodist Church, invocation; Rev. J. Dennis Williams, minister of the Messiah Methodist president of the senior class of Plymouth - Whitemarsh High School, scripture lesson; and Rev. Otho Hoofnagle, minister of St. Thomas Episcopal Church, bene-

Music will be supplied by the high school choir under the direction of C. Marcellus Kuhn, chairman of the Fine Arts department of the high school. Kuhn will also serve as organist.

"The decision to hold Baccalaureate services for Plymouth-Whitemarsh high school students is legal in my opinion," Dr. Allen C. Harman, superintendent of Montgomery County Schools, today told the Recorder.

"I think that some other school districts in the county plan to do the same thing," Dr. Harman said. "Some may hold the Baccalaureate through the sponsorship of ministers' councils and others may do it through the sponsorship of the school boards themselves."

Dr. Harman said that the decision to hold Baccalaureate services was based on a legal opinion by Jules Pearlstine, solicitor of the Montgomery County School Board.

Pearlstine's recommendation was made on Nov. 19 to the County Board of School Directors and the information was promptly distributed to all school districts in

Pearlstine said that since the

Whitemarsh Starts Search For Full-time Engineer

The supervisors of Whitemarsh are looking for a fulltime engineer to replace the office of consulting engineer, presently held by George B. Mebus, Inc., Glenside.

How many more tax dollars will the people of Whitemarsh have to spend to afford a fulltime engineer? In the opinion of township solicitor William L. Huganir, the local taxpayer will hardly feel the pinch. As a matter of fact, Huganir indicated in an interview this week, Whitemarsh may save money on the

"I would say that a fulltime engineer will save the township approximately $5,000 a year that is now being spent in other areas," Huganir said. "The new engineer will probably save the township $3,000 a year in legal fees alone.

"Add the $5,000 savings to $6,000 that the township paid the consulting engineer last year and the sum is fairly close to what you might expect to nav a fulltime engineer. (Bernard Pannone, the | only fulltime engineer Whitemarsh ever had, received $10,500 a year from 1960 to 1963).

"Anything above this $11,000 will certainly be well worth the increased efficiency that the township can expect as a result of the new position," Huganir indicated that a fulltime engineer would save the township money in four major areas. They are:

1. Fees now being paid to the solicitor; because he is "overburdened with work that should be performed by an engineer and not a lawyer."

2. Retainer fee now being paid to consulting engineer.

3. Higher hourly rates now being paid to consulting engineer for work over and above retainer

4. Work being done in other government departments that a fulltime engineer could perform as part of his duties.

"As township solicitor I am doing a lot of work on subdivisions that should be done by an engineer and not a lawyer," Huganir said. "For example, I have to review subdivision plans and see that they comply with regulations. A good engineer could do this much cheaper than a lawyer.

"The township is now being deluged by applications from developers and this is really a critical matter that requires engineering services to process them.

"If an engineer is around all the time it will be much easier to get things done. At present we have to call our consulting engineer from Glenside every time something comes up. He has to run over here and that results in a lot of wasted motion. "Since a fulltime engineer would be available all the time, his hourly rate would be less than that of a consulting engineer.

"The primary purpose of the Baccalaureate program is to provide an inspirational culmination to the students' high school career," Pearlstine said. "It is not principally a devotional exercise, but rather a nonreligious instrument of moral inspiration linking the training which the students have received in school to their obligations as newly inducted members of the secular community.

"The fact that the Baccalaureate program is conducted by clergymen does not render it, per se, as a religious exercise so long as the message presented is secular rather than religious there is no objection to the fact that the speaker is a minister of the Gospel or a clergyman of any other faith."

It was the conclusion of Pearlstine that holding a Baccalaureate program during non-school hours, presided over by a clergyman and utilizing school facilities "is not prohibited under the constitution of the United States as recently interpreted by the Supreme Court."

Dr. Harman said that he stands "100 per cent" behind Pearlstine's decision.

Board to Study Sidewalk Need In Whitemarsh

The board of supervisors in Whitemarsh created a special three-man committee to study the need for more sidewalks in the township last Thursday at their regular monthly meeting.

Jack M. Kendree, chairman of the board, said that the sidewalk committee will be headed by supervisor Richard Lownes and will include the township engineer and a third person to be selected by the township planning commission.

The committee will make recommendations for the installation of sidewalks on a priority basis and will also recommend a method of financing the program.

The product of the study, which is expected to take from 60 to 90 days, will be submitted to the township planning commission who will then make their recommendations to the board of supervisors.

Pupils Flee School Fire

Four hundred and fifty pupils were evacuated from the Consho-hocken High School building, Seventh Ave. and Fayette St., at 10 a.m. Friday when fire broke out in one of the classrooms.

Engines from the Washington and Conshohocken No. 2 Fire Companies responded to the blaze and extinguished it moments after they arrived. Total damage was estimated at $50.

The cause of the fire is still undetermined, but fire officials indicate that it started in a space between the first and second floor partition.

A similar fire occurred several years ago at the same spot. The origin of that fire was never determined.

GOP Should Abolish Area Leaders

The "Political Area Leader" system used by the Republicans in Montgomery County has often been the subject of heated discussions by politicians. Now that the County Committee members have been chosen for a two year term and they in turn have chosen the County Chairman and other officers, it might be opportune to re-examine the Area Leader system.

Under the program, the County is arbitrarily divided into a number of areas. These areas are not uniform either geographically or on a population basis. In fact, it would seem that some were tailor made for a particular politician. The boundaries too often coincide with the breadth of the political influence of the person to be named "leader."

In theory, the area leader is the representative of the committee people. He deals directly with the county chairman on all matters of party policy from selection of candidates to organization of the campaign and clears applicants for state and county jobs.

However, the Republican Party has operated efficiently without area leaders for many years. The county chairman dealt with individual committee members or with those persons who, because of their influence in a locality, were, in fact, area leaders without having been formally designated as such.

When Congressman Samuel McConnell became Republican county chairman in 1956, he initiated the present area leader system. While it is true that on an organizational basis it is more efficient for the county chairman to deal directly with a dozen area leaders rather than with two township chairmen or hundreds of individual committee people, the system has a disruptive effect.

This is so for two reasons. First, it forces the committee people to take sides for one or another candidate for area leader. This often causes disunity that can last for years. Second, it tends to restrict the activities and initiative of individual committee members who feel that since they were elected by the Republican voters in their district, they should be able to deal directly with the county chairman and that another level of authority between them and the chairman restricts their direct usefulness to the voters.

It seems unnecessary to force the committee members into a choice between hopeful leaders in an area. Also, it seems wrong that the committee members elected as party officials by the voting public should not have direct access to the county chairman whom they have elected.

We would suggest that the area leader system be abolished. If the county chairman needs a more elaborate organization, allow him to appoint intermediates who could serve as a liason between the chairman and various areas of the county but would not restrict direct contact between committee members and the chairman.

This would eliminate useless intra-party fights, allow the chairman to have his own agent in an area, and permit the committee members to maintain direct relations with the chairman when necessary.

Counties Need New Government Plan

The hoped-for role of County government in the suburban counties is expanded services and expanded leadership. The County must continue to broaden its activities in those fields that can be of real nelp to the townships and boroughs. The problems of sewage disposal, water supply, welfare services, air pollution, flood control, tax collection, airports, parks, highway maintenance, open space preservation, and others can and should become more and more the concern of County government. The County is still close enough to the people to be a true level of local government. It is in the unique position to offer leadership to the lower levels of government within the County and at the same time demand respect from other political subdivisions in its region.

If this is to be the role of suburban County government, serious thought must be given to its legal structure.

First, either a new class of county should be created by the legislature, or the suburban counties should be granted an option under which they may adopt a plan of County government. The Governor's Commission on Constitutional revision has recommended such an amendment to the Constitution of Pennsylvania.

We recommend that the County Commissioners appoint a Committee of qualified persons to study the role and the legal structure of County Government and make a report to the Commissioners.

The long term future of local government in the metropolitan regions and the growth and development of these regions can be seriously affected by the efficiency of County Government. Now is the time when constructive proposals in this field can be of real value.

World Government Plan Would Destroy U.S.

There's something a bit insidious about a World Government for peace, because peace cannot be accomplished without power, and a World Government would have absolute power.

What did Hitler do with power? He tried to mold the peoples he conquered into a social and economic mirror of his own distorted ideals.

If we believe in the American government founded on checks and balances, on individual liberty, states' rights, local rights, and the powers of recall and impeachment, how can we have the audacity and foolishness to dream of a world where these human and civil rights cannot exist?

Our membership in the United Nations has always been hotly argued by politicians. What has kept us in the U.N.? This dream of a World Government?

Yes, it is a wish for peace. Many persons with great hopes... brilliant thinkers, devoted leaders and dedicated politicians, all look to this goal and insist that we cannot ignore the rest of the world; we cannot separate ourselves.

The choice is clear: nationalism or a socialistic internationalism.

For myself, I see no more wonderful land than ours, no nation as wise and with such magnificent potential. This noble experiment of our fore-fathers has succeeded in making us the leader of the world.

We must choose to continue our journey into an American utopia, and let others follow our example, instead of America following.

Although the United Nations has never approached the effectiveness and importance portended by its founders, still the concept of a World Government is the motivating ideal of the many politicians and intellectuals.

The plan is something like this:

1. Abolish all national armies, excepting a small police force.

2. Give the World Government authority over all international diplomacy.

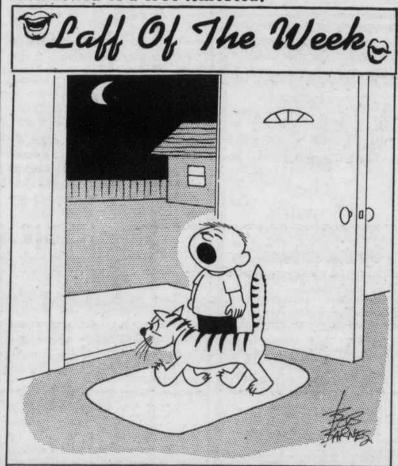

3. Make this government soverign over all other governments, except internal affairs.

If this plan were adopted what would the world be like?

The best example's are ancient ones--the Roman Empire, and before that the Persian Empire, the Hittite Empire, and the Macedonian Empire.

None of these encompassed the entire world, though a few almost did. They were all failures. Their destruction was caused by internal deterioration which left them vulnerable to otherwise mediocre external forces.

What better example could we offer to the 'World Peace' planners? Their plan offers only destruction of a free America.

Profile: Mick Warmington: A Lucky Man In Steeplechase

Mick Warmington, operator of Broad Acre Farms, Whitemarsh, has specialized in training steeplechase race horses all his life.

"Steeplechase racing is a dangerous sport," Mick said. "Especially the form called timber racing where horses have to jump three to five feet over posts and rails wired solid to the ground.

"The horses don't mess around when they go over these jumps. They run as hard and as fast as they can. A three mile race is run in about six minutes; that's about 30 miles an hour.

jockey. The horse has got to be muscled up, settled down, and fit enough to turn on the speed at the finish after going more than two and a half miles.

"In timber racing the speed of the horse is not as important as his stamina and jumping ability. He's got to be extremely surefooted, level-headed, and must have great courage and plenty of bone (i.e. ability to take punish-ever since Dr. Garson S. Paul, of Abington, bought the horsefrom its former owner in Maryland.

Mick and his wife, Pamela, live at 2731 Narcissa Rd., Plymouth Township, close by Broad Acre Farms. They have three children. Caroline Ann, 11, Richard Steven, 10, and Anthony, seven, are all students at Epiphany of Our Lord Elementary School.

Caroline rides very well, according to her father, and often takes out the show horses at Broad Acre and helps teach the younger horses to jump. But she is not allowed to ride any of the race horses just now.

The two boys also ride well and Richard may do some steeplechase riding when he reaches the minimum age of 16.

Mick and his family came to America in 1956 when he was offered a job on an estate in Far Hills, N.J., training show horses. He remained there two years and came to Gwynedd Valley for a job training steeplechase horses that didn't materialize.

With "no money wnatsoever, no house, no horses, no stable, not even a saddle," Mick started his own stable in Gwynedd by borrowing "an old horse," a saddle and bridle from a close friend and renting an old barn for $25 a month.

"I started to give riding instruction to children in the immediate area and my wife, who is a dressmaker, helped out quite a bit," Mick said.

After the first three months Mick managed to buy two horses. In 1960 he started to rent Broad Acre Farms. Today he has 36 horses there and owns 11 of them. The horses are trained for races, shows and some are used for riding instruction purposes.

'Now that the steeplechase season is over we are just getting the show horses ready for their season," Mick said. We also plan to start a riding camp this summer for boys 6-10 and girls 6-15.

"Timber racing is quite dangerous for the jockey. I've seen quite a few bad accidents and had a few myself.

"One time in England, where I was born, I fell on the first jump and brought six horses on top of me. I was extremely lucky. I was sort of knocked cold underneath the heap of horses. My back was so black from bruises it looked like the ace of spades. That was the worst of my injuries.

"I was 17 years old at the time and it was my first race.

"Several weeks ago there was a nasty spill at the Radnor Hunt Club when six horses fell in a maiden timber race and one died. The jockeys were pretty lucky. One suffered a broken collar bone.

"Timber racing is dangerous all right, but in my book it's also the greatest.

"His name is Blue Parrot," Mick said. "He was the Champion Timber Horse of 1963 by winning all three of the big races in the timber racing circuit. This year he won the Salem Timber Race in North Carolina. He came in second at Sonnybrook and fourth at Radnor, a track I should never have let him run because he doesn't like undulating ground.

"Blue Parrot is still a young horse. He is only seven years old and won't be at his best for another two years. It was a real accomplishment for him to become Timber Horse of the Year at six years old, an extremely young age for a timber horse.

Next Spring Mick may take Blue Parrot to England to participate in either the Grand National or the Cheltenham Gold Cup, the two greatest events in steeplechase racing.

"The Grand National is the roughest, toughest steeplechase in the world," Mick said. "It has the biggest fences (5'3" high) with wide water jumps and the works. It is four and a half miles long.

"It's the most thrilling race in the world, but the best horse doesn't always win because the horses are weighted as a handicap.

The borough government of Conshohocken moved into a new municipal building Monday morning.

The new borough headquarters, formerly the Leeland Mansion, located at Eight Ave. and Fayette St., was purchased from the Conshohocken Manufacturers Association for $52,000. Last week Council agreed to modify the building and voted for an $85,000 bond issue to pay for it.

Borough secretary Joseph Walsh and treasurer David M. Hayes are the only persons presently in the building.

"There will certainly be better working conditions for us all around once we get things fixed up." Walsh said. "Right now everything is topsy turvy.

"The biggest advantage will be for the police department when they move in," he said.

The new municipal building, which is centrally located, will be able to seat approximately 100 people in council chambers compared to a seating capacity of 25 in the old building at Hector and Forrest Sts.

It will be used for meetings of Borough Council beginning with the July public meeting.

Market Study

The Montgomery County Planning Commission has been notified ning Commission has been notified that Conshohocken will be the 80th Birthday location of a market analysis study, the first community survey of this type to be undertaken by the Commission. Arthur Loeben, chairman of the Commission said this week.

The survey will be "one of three phases necessary for the comprehensive study of Conshohocken," Loeben noted. "It will determine the extent and amount of retail activity the central business area can support."

In addition, a detailed study of the central business district will be undertaken to determine which buildings can be rehabilitated and which should be demolished, Loeben said.

The third phase is a program whereby the Planning Commission will act as consultant to the Borough on a two-year basis.

"The Borough and merchants already approved the have project," Loeben declared.

He said the actual work will be done by an outside consultant firm which will be hired by the County Planning Commission.

Application to secure federal funds to complete the comprehensive plan is being made by the Commission, Loeben reported.

The next meeting of the Planning Commission will be June 8 at the Charles Johnson Home, near Royersford.
