THE THEME

WHEN parents of the modern student attended school, the three essentials of a good education were reading, writing, and arithmetic. Today's educators hold an entirely different viewpoint of what an education should comprise. The three R's are not enough. They give no opportunity to the student to find and develop any natural talent which he may possess. For this reason, the need for such subjects and activities as art, music, dramatics, science, business training, home economics, and athletics has been recognized and met. The modern high school presents to all its students the opportunity to discover any ability or interests he may have in the field of the drama, of art, of business, of home-making, or of sports.

The old idea of education is a relic of the past; the new idea is the criterion of the present.

FOREWORD

FELLOW Seniors, at the time of reading this book, you will be on the very verge of graduating. Your happy high school days will be ended, and life, with its joys and sorrows, will stretch before you. In order that you may possess something to remind you in later years of the friends and activities which you will leave behind on June 6, we have tried to make this an Annual of happy memories, an Annual which will help you to live over the pleasant times at Senior High. Sometime in the future, when you come upon this book in a dusty corner, you will, with delight, reacquaint yourself with those happiest days in a person's life—school days. It is your Annual and treasure chest of memories.

DEDICATION

We, the graduating class of June, 1933, in grateful recognition of her wise advice given us on troubling questions, and with deep-felt gratitude for her competent management of our high school years, dedicate this book to our capable and kindly supervisor,

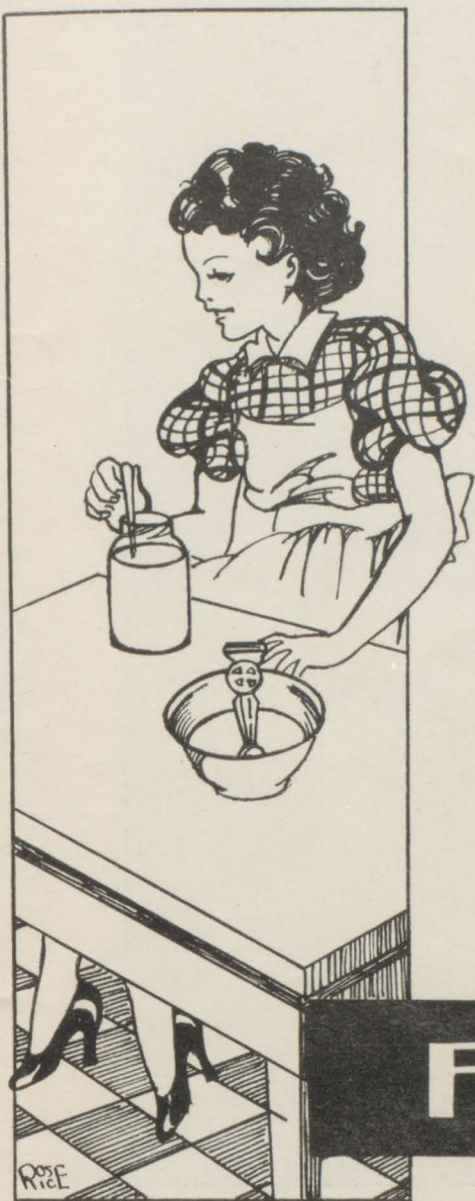

MISS CLARA A. ELLIOTT

HIGH SCHOOL SONG

To the praise of our dear High School,
Sing we loud and long;
Glory, honor and affection,
Give we her in song.
Hours of gladness, free from sadness,
Happy students here;
Sing we to our High School friendships
And our High School dear.

All her children sing her praises
With a love most pure,
For her aims and inspirations
Changelessly endure.
With her beckoning hand before us
We will do and dare,
Live to honor truth and virtue
In these halls so fair.

Bonds of friendship here we're forming,
They will never break,
They will last still true unwavering
For our High School's sake.
And the memories we will cherish
As life's path we tread,
Of the friends we knew and valued
Wearing Black and Red.

When our student days are over,
And no more we're here;
Still we'll think of her with reverence,
Alma Mater dear.
Swell the singing, ever ringing,
Gladly we'll recall,
When our student days are over,
Life in these fair halls.

The Student Council has worked on several projects this semester. A Student Court is in process of formation as well as an Honorary Society and a movement to care for Sophomore girls.

The Council also was responsible for the planting of shrubbery. The major portion of the money necessary to accomplish this object was contributed by the class of January, 1929.

The Girl Reserve Club is a part of the Y. W. C. A. and an international organization. The purpose of the club is "To find and give the best," and the slogan is "To face life squarely." The club was organized in 1882 and since then has done much for girls, both intellectually and socially.

The club has prominent speakers of New Castle talk to them on such subjects as Friendships, Relationships, Music, Painting and Drama.

All the meetings, however, are not limited to talks. At some meetings we divide into interest groups and enjoy such things as hand-craft, dancing and bowling.

Then, too, we have many social functions. This year we had a "get acquainted" party, a bridge, also a dance and a theater party.

The Girl Reserves invite all girls who enjoy making real friends and having real fun to join their group.

THE SENIOR PLAY

The Senior play, "Seven Keys to Baldpate," was played to a packed house. When the curtain closed on the last scene, the audience departed convinced for the most part that it had witnessed one of the best, if not the best, play ever produced by a Senior Class. Its perfection was undoubtedly due to the dramatic strength of each character in the cast. Without a single exception, none of the characters were "weak," although it was the first stage appearance for almost the entire cast.

The leading man, Gene Brotemarkle, had a difficult part to play. It required composure, long speeches likely to become monotonous, and no small amount of dramatic ability. He played it like a professional and contributed greatly to the success of the play. The leading ladies, Betty Joshua and Marion Wilkinson, handled the love element with great success. The melodramatic characters in this melodramatic farce were also finely interpreted. Charles Campbell and Ambrose Casey played their parts to perfection, the one as the crooked mayor of a small New York town, the other as a sly, treacherous crook. Martha Jane Longstreet's portrayal of a hardened, capable blackmailer, was exceptionally fine. Another melodramatic character was Paul Eagan who "made a hit" as the tough right-hand man of the crooked politicians. Adrian Heaton was peculiarly fitted to play his part, that of a hermit, who was also a ghost and a woman-hater. The farcical element was provided by Samuel Dennis, Rex Rowland, Julia Ann McCoy and Bill Bumbaugh, who evoked laughter and applause from the audience.

IN GRATITUDE TO OUR TEACHERS

You have planned, and toiled, and worried,
You have borne with us awhile;
Set our wavering, stubborn feet
On the road that leads to wisdom.
You have set before us visions,
Your ideals and your example;
While we heeded not, or cared not,
Yet you struggled onward smiling.
You have planned and toiled and worried—
May it not have been in vain;
We shall strive to make you proud
To say you started us along the path
That leads upward, ever upward to success.
We cannot now repay you,
Or can we ever pay that debt;
We can only say—
 "We thank you."

—RUTH SCHNEBLY.

HUMOR

EPITAPHS ON THE MEMBERS OF THE ANNUAL STAFF

Here lies tall John Stump,
A grave boy was he.
He bore all our cares,
Now he lies 'neath this tree.

Here lies Miss Ruth Schnebly
Of sound mind and sane;
She drove her dad's car
And entangled a train.

Here lies David Jones,
A perennial tease;
He talked all the time
And his poor tongue did freeze.

Here lies poor Rose Rice,
An intelligent mite;
But Minerva was jealous,
So dear Rose, good-night.

Here lies Ione Farver,
A victim of fate;
She rode with Ruth Schnebly
And jumped, all too late.

Here lies dear Miss Brandt,
So sweet in repose;
All her dancing partners
Did tramp on her toes.

Here lies Morgan Jones,
And oh, how he sang!
But some critics thought not—
All we heard was the bang!

Here lies Olive Wigton,
Her life was a song;
She did all the typing,
And now she is gone.

Here lies Bertha Zajac,
On a horse she did go;
But the horse didn't stop
When Bertha yelled, "Whoa!"

Here lies Ambrose Casey,
He was chased by a bear;
While trying to escape,
He rushed into its lair.

Here lies the "Professor,"
A great one to think;
While writing an epic,
He was drowned in the ink.

Here lies dear Virginia,
No more will she roam;
For she met her death,
For writing this pome.

Requiescant Pace.

Miss Calvin was at the bank having her pay check cashed:
Cashier: "I'm very sorry, but I'll have to give you old bills; I hope you aren't afraid of microbes?"
Miss Calvin: "Oh, no; microbes couldn't live on my salary."

Stage Hand (to Miss Hartsuff): "Shall I lower the curtain? One of the living statues has the hic-cups."

:—:—o—:—:

Miss Elliott: "Jessie, I have told you again and again not to speak
when I am speaking, but wait until I stop."

Jessie: "I've tried that already, Miss Elliott, but the trouble is you never stop."

UPON ENTERING P. O. D. CLASS

There's a fear lodged in my heart,
There's a shaking in my knee;
There's a vacuum in my head
When I go to P. O. D.

When my shaking hand is raised,
High above my empty head,
There's a quaking in my voice,
And my feet feel just like lead.

When I ope my mouth to answer,
There's a lump comes in my throat;
And a bumping and a thumping
Somewhere beneath my coat.

And my answer, when 'tis given,
Is as dumb as it can be;
Oh, my little life is darkened,
But that subject, P. O. D.

Lee Sappington and Jack Cole were puzzling their brains to invent a new game. At last Lee said eagerly: "I know, Jack, let's see who can make the ugliest face."

"Aw, go on!" was the reply. "Look what a start you've got."

Mr. Margraff: "Can you explain wireless telegraphy to me, Sam?"

Sam McBride: "Well, if you had a very long dog, reaching from London to Liverpool, and you trod on its tail in London, it would bark in Liverpool. That's telegraphy; and wireless is precisely the same only without the dog."

REAL SUCCESS

There's a place in the world for everyone,
If he can but discover the place;
There's some bit of work for each one to do,
There's always a goal in life's race.

There's only one way to succeed at a task,
That's by work which is earnest, not shirked;
For the man who is found at the top of the heap
Is always the man who has worked.

Don't be a misfit in the place you may choose,
Make the best of the gifts you possess;
For the man who gives all that he has to give
Is the one who finds real happiness.

Success can't be measured in great sums of gold,
Nor measured by honor and fame;
But by the good work that anyone does,
For good work and success are the same.

—VIRGINIA STONE.
