Hitler Now Ready To Take Big Gamble. Lease Plan Means War

All decisions continue to hinge on war events. What comes next in Europe according to the United States News.

Best opinion of this Government's military and naval advisers is that...

Hitler is about set to make his big gamble in going with new equipment new airplanes, submarines, mines, men, legions for Britain and Ireland.

Chance of getting there and of staying is about 50-50; is dependent on the one condition of gaining control of the air over the channel.

Failure to win this gamble, when made, will start Hitler on the downward slide; will mark the beginning of the end of another try at world conquest.

Success in the gamble will mean that U. S. faces its greatest test.

Idea that military invasion will be tried on this country is not entertained.

Privately, experts say that invasion is highly improbable. Publicly, they mention invasion as a means of jolting public opinion to realization of danger.

Inside view is that conquest of Britain would be followed by:

A race for Atlantic outposts in Iceland, Greenland, Cape Verde Islands, the Azores, with ability of this country to get there first dependent upon the fate of the British Fleet and upon the objective of the conquering Germans.

A southward drive by Japan that would force U. S. to decide quickly whether to sacrifice Far Eastern interests, to give up idea of keeping vital raw materials in hands of friends, or to send the Pacific Fleet crashing in to check the Japanese.

Boro To Boost Tax Rate Two Mills

Proposed 1941 Budget Calls For Expenditures of $74,551.51

A tax rate increase of at least two mills was predicted here this week as borough council passed on first reading its annual budget of $74,551.51, an increase over 1940 of exactly $3,374.

The temporary budget will be altered slightly before coming up for second reading, due to certain changes to be made in the landscaping and finishing of the new pumping station, Borough Secretary Elam E. Habecker explained.

The 1941 budget calls for estimated receipts, including the water department surplus, of $33,575.58. The estimated expenses of the water department including improvements, salaries for the year and other operating expenses are fixed at $50,470.00.

The 1940 budget was $41,177.66 for all borough expenses. The increase will boost Lititz' three-mill tax rate to five mills. While other boroughs of the county have had much higher tax rates for years past, Lititz has persistently kept its rate at three mills until the present water department improvements were launched.

Sixty contagious diseases during 1940 were listed in the report presented by J. W. Ruhl, secretary of the Board of Health. They included: Measles 4, chicken pox, 30, whooping cough 24, mumps 2 and pneumonia 3. The report also showed 38 births and 40 deaths. It was announced that E. H. Rissor had been reelected for a five-year term as a member of the Board of Health.

The State Highway department asked that the council approve their plan of straightening the Petersburg road where it meets Spruce street and Second avenue. Action was deferred until council could contact John Dittman, whose property it was to affect.

An ordinance was introduced to open Noble street. It passed on first reading. Burgess Wagner reported one arrest, four parking violations and twenty-nine lodgers during the past month.

STAR FRACTURES SHOULDER SO PLAY IS POSTPONED

Peck's Bad Boy really lived up to his name in Rothsville this week when the leading character in the comedy play, "Peck's Bad Boy" broke his shoulder bone in a wrestling match and forced the postponement of the play.

Luther Hackman, of Pine Hill, was the unfortunate victim of the accident. Hackman had been chosen for the part of Peck's Bad Boy which the Senior Class of the Warwick Township High School was to present February 7 and 8.

Announcement was made today that the play will be postponed until March 28 and 29.

Lancastrian Surveyed Park As School Project In 1873

People milling through the crowds that throng the Lititz Springs Park on the Fourth of July have often wondered about the area of the park, but few have ever bothered to inquire of the park officials, or have attempted to measure its acres.

Yet in 1873 when the question bothered Frank G. Shirk he chose the surveying of the park as a project in trigonometry.

Mr. Shirk of 218 East Orange Street, Lancaster, was at the time a pupil in the Lititz Academy conducted by Rickert and Hepp, and his notebook which he recently sent to the Lititz Record-Express office shows a carefully drawn plan accompanied by neatly arranged field notes.

The ten-day period is being observed in Lancaster city and at least a dozen other communities of the county with practically all expected to unite in the patriotic demonstration during the coming week.

According to plans, Lititz will be bedecked in American flags during the Democracy Days celebration. Local merchants and industrial operators have been urged to display flags at their places of business while home-owners also will be asked to keep in step with the businessmen.

Council Will Name Officer On Thursday

Charges Are Not Aired As Haines Is Formally Dismissed

Without once discussing or revealing the nature of the charges against Night Police Officer Lester Haines, borough council Tuesday night unanimously approved Burgess Wagner's motion for the suspension of the officer and later passed a resolution relieving Haines of any further duty as a borough police officer.

Council will meet again at a special meeting Thursday night at 6:30 o'clock to examine four other candidates who have applied for Haines' position. Haines' himself submitted his application and asked for a change to redeem himself.

Candidates included Constable Raymond Binkley, of North Cedar street, Walter Auken, 16 East Orange Street, Luther Nagle and Robert Weaver.

With Councilmen Quinton Enck and Guy Calvert confined to their homes by illness, Haines appeared before the three remaining members of the group and briefly made his plea for re-instatement.

"I would like to get back on again and redeem myself for what I have done," Haines declared. Following a short pause, a resolution was presented and unanimously approved by those present in which council approved the action of Burgess Wagner in suspending Haines. Later this resolution was amended to state that Haines' suspension should be made permanent and that he be relieved of any further duties as a borough officer.

Haines' however had left the council chamber after the first resolution and was not aware that he had been dismissed permanently until after the meeting.

Wagner Fixes Fire Losses At $21,625

Lititz' fire losses during 1940 showed an abrupt drop from the high of the year previously, according to the annual report made public this week by Fire Chief Emory Wagner.

Losses from fire and water within the borough limits reached only $5,200, Chief Wagner reported. Even this amount would have been much less had it not been for one particularly destructive blaze, that of the Hensel drug store last winter in which the presence of chemicals and drugs made it a particularly difficult fire to fight.

Losses incurred from fire in the districts surrounding Lititz but covered by the local fire department reached a total of $16,125, principally due to a number of barn fires. Combined the total fire loss in the borough and in all of the surrounding townships reached a total of $16,425. This loss compares quite favorably with the loss of the year previous when the Walton Paper Cor-

Harking back to the horse and wagon days brings to mind a junkman known to all the boys in this town over forty years ago. A man by the name of Walker from Lancaster, with his grey horse. With a bell in an arch over the horse's collar, Walker needed no loud speaker to announce his arrival in the town. Walker always wore leather boots with his trousers stuffed in them. Two Councilmen Ill In Bed

The fact that Councilman Tom Steffy disregarded the advice of his physician was all that made it possible for borough council to muster up a quorum for an important meeting here Tuesday evening.

Obviously suffering from the effects of a congested chest condition, Councilman Steffy remained only until official business all was disposed of and then returned to his home. Councilmen Guy Calvert and Quinton Enck both were confined to their homes with the flu and unable to be present.

Council Will Name Officer On Thursday

Charges Are Not Aired As Haines Is Formally Dismissed

Without once discussing or referring the matter of the charges against Night Police Officer Lester Haines, borough council Tuesday night unanimously approved Burgess Victor Wagner's action in suspending the officer and later passed a resolution relieving Haines of any further duty as a borough police officer.

Council will meet again at a special meeting Thursday night at 8:00 o'clock to examine four other candidates who have applied for Haines' position. Haines' himself submitted his application and asked for a change in his position.

Candidates included Constable Raymond Shively, of North Cedar street, Walter Baker, 16 East Orange Street, Luther Nale and Robert Weaver.

With Councilman Goinson Euck and Gay Carter, confined to their homes by illness, Haines appeared before the Lititz remaining members of the group and briefly made his plea for re-employment.

"I would like to get back on again and redeem myself for what I have done," Haines declared.

Following a short pause, a resolution was presented and unanimously approved by those present in which council approved the action of Burgess Wagner in suspending Haines. Later this resolution was amended to state that Haines' suspension should be made permanent and that he be relieved of any further duties as a borough officer.

Haines' however had left the council chamber after the first resolution and was not aware that he had been dismissed permanently until after the meeting.

Bowery Pastor Will Address Young People

Dr. Charles J. St. John, pastor of the Bowery Mission, New York City, will address a great gathering of young people and friends of young people in Lancaster, Wednesday evening, January 31 at 7:45, the Christian Youth Rally sponsored by the Lancaster County Christian Endeavor Union in the Grace Evangelical Congregational Church, Shiplin and Locust streets. This event is for everyone, regardless of denominational or other interests, and the Christian Endeavor Union is particularly anxious to have all youth organizations well represented.

Dr. St. John, one of the most colorful and dynamic ministers in America, is no stranger to Lancaster County audiences, having appeared on several occasions for gatherings of young people. He is a powerful preacher and a real man of God, vitally interested in reaching souls for Christ. This rally will be evangelistic in nature, bringing to a fitting close the special evangelistic effort of the Christian Endeavor Union during the month of January. Dr. St. John is unusually well liked for such a meeting because of his constant work of evangelism on the Bowery. Having been himself converted from a life of dissipation, he has been God's instrument to lead hundreds of others out of darkness into light. His messages are filled with thrilling experiences out of his life on the Bowery. (Continued on Page 4)

INCREASE IN IRON PRICES

Noticed by the papers that the junkmen, the restoration program causing a raise in prices for such things as old iron and copper. Having back to the horse and wagon days brings to mind a junkman known to all the boys in this town over thirty years ago. A man by the name of Walker from Lancaster, with his grey hair, with a bell in an arch over the horse's collar, Walker needed no loud speaker to announce his arrival in the town. Walker always wore leather boots with his trousers stuffed in them. He always had the same big grey horse, and from appearance the horse was well fed. Many of the other junk dealers had thin, worn-out animals, and the junkies were quick to size up the situation that Walker was a man who treated his horse right. Walker, no one seemed to know his surname, always was fair in weighing, something in which some others in the same business were found to be tricky.

So Walker took first place in the estimation of the juveniles of the town. Hearing this the boys would rush to get their collection of old iron and bones and maybe another had a bag of rags. As Walker weighed up and counted second hand items.

The Snow Storm

Lititz and its environs certainly fell heir to a magic-like splendor this week when the unusually soft, fine snow draped a half-foot deep blanket over the countryside. And while many of us do a lot of grumbling at the sight of a heavy snow, the present one was really so beautiful that few failed to drink in nature's marvelous contribution to our humdrum existences.

And in times of war and strife, worries and tribulations, it might do all of us some good to let our minds dwell more upon the wonders of old man nature. Surely you couldn't find a more fit setting to enjoy a good snow-storm than the hills and valleys on all sides of Lititz.

Let the city fellow slosh through the slush—we prefer to be where the snowdrifts remain white until they melt.

Roy Stark

Roy Stark was a friend of every high school boy or girl and his passing will be missed by all of them. As we knew him Roy was interested in good, clean sports and he did much to promote honest, healthy competition, especially in basketball.

Hoover Sees Hope

"All mankind faces an economically and morally impoverished world," declares former President Herbert Hoover, in the February issue of The Rotarian magazine. "If we are inclined to disbelieve that, we need but to listen to the voice of experience. All nations share the ill effects of war."

"In the war expansion of agriculture, the United States plowed up 60 million acres of pasture, and the demoralization resulting from the surplus of this cultivation vexes the nation down to this day," points out this administrator, who has been battling the problem since the last war. "Recovery could have come long since, but so economically unified is the planet that constant shocks from Europe defeated that effort time and time again."

"I spent nearly a score of years dealing with the invisible forces which make for war, peace, and revolution," Hoover, the man who fed Belgium, says. "For years it was my sole occupation to care for the homeless, the foodless, the frightened, and the helpless. And when one speaks to me of war, I think of its human cost—not alone in terms of misery while it is in progress, but also in terms of its backwash that affects the minds and souls of men as well as bodies in the years that follow."

Yet Hoover feels that scientific research into the fundamental laws of Nature contributes to the moral and spiritual life of mankind. "Here is the inculcation of veracity of thought in a world sodden with intellectual dishonesty," he says. "Here is confirmation of a supreme guidance in the universe, far above man himself!"

"Preparedness Through Production"

The week of January 19 to 25, 1941, may well prove to have been one of the most decisive in this nation's history. For it was designated by the governors of the industrial states of the country as "Preparedness through Production Week," and during it the National Industrial Council has been conducting a vast survey of all the defense production facilities of the United States "down to the last lathe in the smallest plant."

The National Industrial Council is a group of industrial and trade associations sponsored by the National Association of Manufacturers, and it offers the perfect machinery through which industry can successfully conduct a "self-census" that will be of infinite value to the nation. The N. I. C. has sent out over 30,000 questionnaires to the factories of this country, returnable by the end of "Preparedness through Production Week," and the data contained in the answers will be at the disposal of the new Office for Production Management.

William S. Knudsen, Director of OPM and John D. Biggers, its Production Chief, both paid tribute to this vast project on the part of industry itself, designed to aid the nation to promote its own security. Mr. Biggers, speaking to a nation-wide radio audience, said that in this and other parts of the industrial defense program the word "impossible" was being struck from the national vocabulary. Mr. Knudsen, in a letter to Walter D. Fuller, President of N.A.M., declared that he was sure that, when completed, the survey would "have forged a new and powerful tool, in the form of vital information for the defense of the nation."

Both these noted gentlemen are right in their statements. And in this vast inventory of our defense needs, we have the inspiring picture of a free people answering the problems posed by a chaotic world, and answering those problems in their own free, intelligent way.

'Mid The Turmoil

Do You Know That: When Roy Reidenbaugh went costing with Donnie Sunday he took the Missus along so that she could tow them back up the hill again with the auto after they had come sledding down; Bill Light is all packed and ready to enlist; Frank Hunter eliminated the draft when he traded in his old station wagon for a new one; the Weekend Hunting Club had a real smack-bang banquet Saturday night; the General Sutter staff had three absent because of sickness this week; Ben Grosh is an enthusiastic Lion; Ben Forrest and family spent the week-end at Collingswood, N. J., visiting the Missus' folks and report that Lititz got more snow than any other section of eastern Pennsylvania or New Jersey; Ralph Gonder has just recovered from a painful boil right on the end of his nose.

It's Not Been So Long Since: One had to go out of town to see a movie; Tom Dusinger and Ike Kauffman put on their sham-battle for a stranger; the banks were open all day Saturday; the U. B. Church built a beautiful stone addition; Louis Lyons traded his Model T while George Pennypacker kept his; trees were growing from a cellar on Main Street; there was no public library; street cars swayed from Lititz to Lancaster; West End Avenue was a corn field; and the war in Europe seemed a long way off.

Peg Weidman wants to know why women want to be called chickens or kittens—but then get boiling mad if you call them hens or cats.

We know a man who fell off the water wagon and broke his resolution.

We know a man who raced a train to a crossing—it was a dead heat.

An up-state weekly lists its births, marriages and deaths under the heading of Hatched, Matched, Dispatched

But that still isn't quite as bad as the Chicago Tribune which in reporting the execution of Jacob Duggan, gangster of 20 years ago, wrote the heading: JACOB CLIMBS UP THE LADDER.

Groundhog Day

Sunday is groundhog day and Quarryville, the home of the celebrated Slumbering Groundhog Lodge, again comes into the lime light for its share of publicity. According to one local preacher, Lititz, too, would come into prominence if all of those who have been hibernating would come out to church services here Sunday morning.

Welfare Carries On Throughout The Year

Once a year the papers are filled with news of what the sixteen Welfare agencies in Lancaster City and County are doing. Then for the remainder of the year, the majority of us lose sight of what these agencies, partially supported by support from the Lititz Community Chest, are doing.

This week a summary of what the Welfare Federation agencies did during the past month was placed on our desk—and the list was so imposing that we decided to pass it along for your edification. All who aided in the successful campaign of the local community chest can take pride in examining this list which we print below exactly as it came to us:

1203 patients were cared for at the Lancaster General and St. Joseph's hospitals—39 per cent received charity care, and 5 per cent part charity. The Clinics, Dispensaries and Receiving Wards cared for 1079 patients.

54 patients were cared for at Rossmere Sanatorium. 112 pneumothorax treatments were given.

1522 visits were made to 300 patients by the Visiting Nurse Association, 209 children attended the Child Welfare Clinics.

522 families were assisted or served by the Family Bureau of the Community Service Association.

100 crippled children received care and service from the Lancaster County Society for Crippled Children.

340 children—from 216 broken homes—were under the protective care of the Children's Bureau of the Community Service Association, 290 children were being cared for in foster homes.

39 children whose mothers must work are being cared for at the Day Nursery.

2035 meals were provided for homeless men by the Salvation Army, 425 Christmas baskets were given to needy families.

A Primer For Americans

A primer, as everyone is more or less aware, is a book that tells in simple terms the fundamental facts concerning any given subject. Most of us studied primers when we were very young, and they helped us learn to read and spell and become acquainted with our country's history. We draw upon the things we learned from those primers every day of our lives, without ever really being conscious of our debt to them.

Democracy In Action

The Congressional Record of January 24, page A232 has a fine report of the way Congressman William Townsend Pheiffer, Republican from the 16th District New York City, formerly a strong Tammany stronghold.

avored the bill with restrictions. "Leave the reins in the hands of Congress in conjunction with the executive branch," was the recommendation of the majority, Mr. Pheiffer said.

"The people were just amazed at being consulted", Mr. Pheiffer said. "To me it was the most natural thing in the world. It may be an innovation but it is my idea of how people should be sounded out. I intend to follow it up."

Questioned about his political background Mr. Pheiffer said: "I've never even been anywhere near public office before. I am proud to say that I am not a politician and that I don't know anything about the working of politics. I regard this as I would a matter of private employment, as if I had been retained to be a representative of the people."

Woodchuck Harbinger of Spring Says Ward Walker of Hershey Zoo

Sunday is ground day; and, according to rural tradition, if the ground-hog sees his shadow he retreats to his hole for six weeks, which is a sign of a late spring. If he does not see his shadow there will be an early spring.

According to Dr. Walker, Director of the Hershey Zoo, those persons who believe that the ground-hog forecasts six weeks' continuation of winter weather, or the end of winter weather, are basing their entire theory upon hearsay.

Says Mr. Walker: "The ground-hog is just another harbinger of spring and belongs in the same category as the bluebird, robin and trillium.

"The ground-hog in its natural state goes into hibernation the very day he finds he is unable to secure further food as a vegetarian. He will remain in this hibernating state as long as he has sufficient fat reserve to keep him in good physical condition.

"An empty stomach or lack of sufficient food will cause him to come to the surface and look over the situation for the main purpose of securing food. If, at that time, winter weather is still prevalent but, of course, has no alternative but to return from whence he came.

At short intervals he comes to the surface to look the situation over for the same reason. "Being a strict vegetarian the ground-hog must, of course, wait until winter is entirely over so that he can obtain fruit, roots, berries, new grass shoots or green bark, which chiefly comprises his diet." At the Hershey Zoo, Mr. Walker says, the ground-hog needlessly but instinctively, goes into what is known as hibernation, but rouses himself every two or three days to secure water and a small amount of food. If the animal is annoyed he greatly resents it and is very grouchy during this period. When the captive ground-hog takes his regular diet and begs for more, becoming frisky and wishing to play with his keeper, Mr. Walker says it is a sure sign that Spring is here.

THAT OLD, RED SHAWL By Marguerite Musser Weidman When I was just a little child We owned an old, red shawl. Whatever ailments we might have It cured them—big or small. When my behavior was quite bad A spanking I'd receive; I'd hide beneath t he old, red shawl And there I'd pine and grieve. That time I raced the next-door kid And had a nasty fall; I found the balm for bitter pains Beneath the old, red shawl. Its healing powers were, I'm sure Bestowed by fairies kind; How else could aches have disappeared And comfort I would find? From whence it came, I do not know, Nor where it is today; But oft I've wished that it were mine With me 'twould surely stay. To soothe my worries, ills, and fears, My troubles, great and small; I'd rest my body, soul and mind, Beneath the old, red shawl.

NEW BOOKS

By Miss Bessie Searle Lititz Librarian

MR. & MRS. CUGAT by Isabel Scott Rorick. If you are tired of the heavy novels of social problems and long ones with historical significance, here is a novel which will delight and entertain you for an evening. You will probably be amused and laugh at this affectionate young married couple whom you have met I am sure but do not often find in novels. They have a grand time together at their parties, on their trips, and at home. They get into some rather awkward situations with their friends, but they survive these and their own domestic crises with their sense of humor unharmed. You will remember these young people, especially when you are faced with similar predicaments.

THERE SHALL BE NO NIGHT by Robert E. Sherwood. In light of the play "Idiot's Delight" Sherwood's new play is interesting for his pacifism seem to have given way to becoming a war-monger. He calls it a sequel and says he is not untrue to himself and the development of his views is given in a bony preface. The center of the drama is Helsinki on the eve of the Russian-Nazi invasion of Finland. Dr. Valkonen a Nobel prize winner saves us Sherwood's invasion of Finland. Dr. Valkonen a Nobel prize winner gives us Sherwood's new point of view. His American born wife is charming and the characterization of the American newspaper men, his son and daughter-in-law make them clearly visualized. Although the conquest of Finland has occurred, the truths brought out are still true today.

LOOKING AHEAD

many-Japan would seek to bottle up the U. S.; would seek to gain economic control over Latin America, to create depression in U. S. and Canada by closing export markets, to foster internal dissensions that isolation develops. In this war, biggest weapons would be in German-Japanese hands.

Lend-lease plan is the President's antidote for isolation. It is intended:

As a means for providing Britain with all possible war materials.

As a method for assuring that war can continue if Germany conquers England.

As a means of keeping Hitler bottled up in Europe and Japan out of South Seas.

As machinery for merging British-American world interests in event of need.

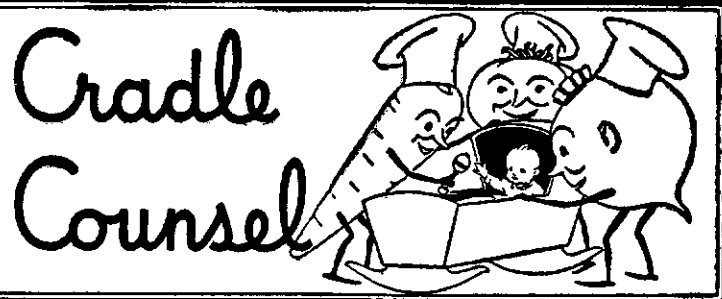

Would lend-lease plan, in effect, mean war? Not necessarily. Not unless other events precipitated war. All Presidents have power to make war inevitable if they wish; all have constitutional authority as commander in chief of Army and Navy to order moves that leave Congress no alternative but to ratify. Actually: Roosevelt insists that his intent is to avoid war; that the objective is to avoid shooting; that it is better to transfer U. S. ships, airplanes, guns, tanks for use by Englishmen than to send Americans to man them.

Prospect is very strong that Congress will agree with Roosevelt.

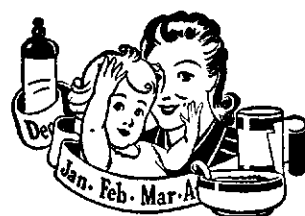

Prospect is slim that Lindbergh or other testimony will change many votes.

President probably will accept amendments to (1) limit life of the law to two years; (2) require periodical report to Congress; (3) state Congress's opposition to use of U. S. Navy for convoy of merchant ships.

It looks like no more than 25 Senate, no more than 100 House votes against Lend-Lease Bill when vote comes, unless public opinion veers sharply.

GROWING UP SIGNS

One of the joys of parenthood is watching and marveling at the baby's development from day to day. There are his first smile—his first word—and his first strained food to celebrate. Then comes the day his first tooth is discovered and when he gets a few more teeth you make an occasion of his graduation to the almost-grown-up stage where he is given chopped foods.

Certain of these gala days bring new responsibilities to the mother, of course. Introducing the new strained cereals, fruits and vegetables is a task requiring particular care because this is the baby's first experience with them. Since they are so important to his growth and later health, one must make an effort to teach him to enjoy their flavors. Also, his introduction to the chopped foods which are intermediate between his strained foods and the family fare, must be carefully planned so it is connected in his mind with a pleasant situation for it is at this time he learns to chew.

Necessary considerations in introducing these new foods to the baby are fine quality and flavor. Also, since you depend on the strained and chopped foods to provide the baby with vitamins and minerals that build a strong body and help keep him healthy, they must be foods prepared with extra care. For these reasons, more and more doctors are recommending the use of the prepared strained and chopped foods which come in cans and need only to be heated before serving.

Though one can get these foods ready for the child with the usual home kitchen equipment, the special equipment which prepares the food assures the retention of minerals that are precious, and the absence of air in the process preserves the vitamins to the greatest extent possible. Further proof of the extra value of these strained and chopped foods is that they are made from products selected at their most perfect state of development immediately upon their removal from the fields. This assures delicious freshness of flavor and thus helps the baby enjoy his first fruits and vegetables the more.

The age at which the child should be given either the strained or the chopped foods is a question which the doctor in charge should decide. Some babies can take small amounts of any of the strained foods at four months, while others might be sensitive to them. In the case of the chopped foods, the tooth development and the aptitude of the child in his attempts to chew may have something to do with the time he may be served them. The starting age for chopped foods will usually vary between 12 and 18 months, depending upon the doctor's advice.

Both are given gradually at first. The strained food is diluted with water or milk so the change from the liquid diet will not be too abrupt, then the proportion of liquid is decreased by degrees. The baby may start with a teaspoon of the strained food given at one of the feeding times during the day, then this amount should be increased until he gets a full 4 1/2-ounce tin per day.

One may start feeding the chopped food by mixing a small amount of it with the strained food of similar flavor until he becomes accustomed to the feel of the coarser particles. After that the proportion of the chopped food is gradually increased. The chopped foods come in large cans, holding 6 1/2 ounces, because by the time the baby is getting these he is eating a greater quantity at one time.

Fortunately, both the prepared strained and prepared chopped foods offer an excellent variety to the baby. There are 14 different kinds of strained foods—2 soups, 8 strained vegetables, one strained cereal and 3 strained fruits. Among the chopped foods are a lamb and liver combination, a cereal, vegetable and chicken combination, 4 creamed vegetables, 2 chopped vegetables without the cream sauce and one mixture of chopped vegetables besides 3 fruit desserts. Thus you have ample opportunity to teach a child to like a great variety of delicious foods which are specially good for him with the result that you have few feeding problems to be solved.

Sportsmen Take Part In Co. Banquet

Lititz sportsmen were well represented at the second annual banquet of the Federated Sportsmen of Lancaster County held Monday night in the American Legion Home at Ephrata.

Those from here who took part were Elmer Bomberger, Abe Hershey, Christ Koehler, Lloyd Koehler, John Steffy, Lester Haines, William G. Eshleman, Lloyd Firestone, George Spiekler, E. K. Adams, and Arthur Keath.

Seth Gordon, executive director of the Pennsylvania Game Commission, was the principal speaker and emphasized the need of feeding birds during the season of snowstorms.

Two hundred and fifty persons, many of the opposite sex, were gathered around the festive board despite the bad weather—the main idea of the speakers—was future conservation and the protection of wild life.

Gordon, during his talk, stated that in 1923 the male pheasant was the only legal bird in this State. He also told his attentive audience that plans are underway to stock some 20,000 quail in this County during the Spring period. Gordon also stated that all hunters who have not already filed their reports are urged to do so before the final checkup gets underway within the very near future.

The speaker also placed an interesting sidelight in the way of accidents—stating there were 22 big game fatalities in 1939 and only 18 fatalities in 1940 when during this latter period almost three as many deer were killed by State sportsmen. As a fitting climax to this statement Gordon urged all Safety Committees to stress the importance of more red hats in the fields.

Hatcheries Started in County Fish hatcheries originally came to the fore in Lancaster county along about 1873 at Donegal Springs. H. R. Stackhouse, Secretary to the State Fish Commission, told his attentive audience.

James M. Morton, Chief of the Land Management of the Game Commission, informed the group that he noticed during the past year that through the cooperation of sportsmen's units that more data concerning wild life has been published in newspapers and used by radio commentators.

C. A. French, Commissioner of Fisheries, was unable to be in attendance as his automobile figured in an accident over the week-end in Western Pennsylvania.

A pledge to the flag was led by Dr. Evan D. Russell, Commander of Cloister Post of the Ephrata American Legion.

Allen Wilker, retiring president, introduced the new officers, Lyle Simmons, of Columbia, president; R. S. Sullenberger and Arthur Nordis and the following members who served as chairmen for their respective committees: Elmer Bomberger, George Kreiner, Lloyd Greiner and Earl Way for their good work in making the affair a most complete success.

HIDDEN BEAUTY?

THE ugly duckling and the glamour girl had about an even break with the current Don Juans—in the days when the women dressed like this! The all-concealing manto with its accompanying dark skirt, black hose and very unalluring black shoes—was the prescribed street costume for women in South America until little more than a quarter of a century ago. No respectable woman ever appeared on the street in the morning unless swathed in a manto, and none, either married or single, ever left the seclusion of her house unless accompanied.

The manto—no relation at all to the Spanish mantilla—was a shawl-like square, wrapped around the body and held across the face as shown in the accompanying illustration. Those of the poor women were of black cotton but those of the wealthy were made of rich silk with borders elaborately embroidered in black leaves and flowers. Garbed thus, women had little worry about permanent waves, cosmetic shades, or costume color schemes. Yet many of them would have discarded their mantos long before they did—had they dared. The first to defy the edicts of society and the church were women who had lived for a time in Europe. Upon their return, they bravely sallied forth in the morning with very transparent lace veils coquetishly tied over their heads instead of the traditional manto. Everyone was scandalized, and the clergy preached long sermons about this outrage against the doctrines of the church. And then one day a very frivolous girl went to church wearing a hat! This brought even more severe admonitions, and it all finally ended up by women wearing their hats to the door of the church, and there replacing them with veils. Along with the mantos—went the shackles! Travelers visiting Peru and Chile on the fortnightly cruises from New York find the majority of the women in South America living quite as active and independent a life as the women here in the United States.

Traveling Around America

Edna Mae Stark

"IRISH" potatoes? Not much! This Indian woman can tell you that the potato is a native of Peru. Her ancestors were cooking and eating the tasty tubers hundreds of years before the Irish ever heard of them. The potato traveled widely and experienced many transplantings before it reached Ireland. The plants were carried from Peru to Spain, in the first place—early in the sixteenth century when the conquistadors returned from the New World. In 1660, when the Spaniards were colonizing Florida, the strange edible plant traveled along with them. After Sir Frances Drake and other British adventurers had taken their fling at the New World the strange edible plant made its debut in the British Isles.
It was almost two centuries before the lowly potato was received in the best society on the Isles and in Europe. After a bit of press agenting, however—pamphlets pointing the fine features of the new vegetable, and grandees wearing bouffantieres of the plant's flower—the potato began to achieve popularity, particularly with the Irish. As a matter of fact, it was the failure of the potato crop in Ireland which sent the wearers of the green over here to settle in New England, and to start growing their pet food. Today in Peru, the country which started the potato on its peregrinations, scores of different types still are grown. Travelers visiting the country on the popular fortnightly cruises from New York are amazed to discover potatoes in all sorts of shapes and sizes, and in practically every color of the rainbow. In the highlands, however, where the wild ones first became a regular part of the daily fare—potatoes still are known as papas.

CULTURAL PRACTICES AFFECT TOMATO CROP

Cultural practices do influence tomato yields in spite of the weather, according to the reports of 122 Pennsylvania tomato growers who completed records on 12-ton yields in 1940, says J. M. Huffington, vegetable gardening extension specialist of the Pennsylvania State College.

Certificates were awarded to these growers by the Pennsylvania Vegetable Growers Association, during the annual meeting at the State Farm Show last week in Harrisburg.

The highest record in field was obtained by B. L. Shipman, Muncy, who grew 15.09 tons of tomatoes per acre on 3 1/2 acres. The application of 20 tons of cow manure per acre, including sod in the rotation, the use of 630 pounds per acre of 5-10-10 fertilizer, a good stand of plants, and spacing 4 by 4 1/2 feet were the high points of Shipman's practices.

SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

Treating Taboo
In the case of alcoholic beverages the custom of "treating" is one more honored in the breach than in the observance. So good an authority on what to do and what not to do as Emily Post says there is never the slightest necessity for taking a cocktail or anything else to drink. "Simply say, 'no, thank you,' and go on talking." There is method in the madness of those who seek to make a bugaboo of refusing alcoholic hospitality. It needs to be met uncompromisingly by people who have influence and social standing as well as sound Christian principles.

Personal Responsibility
"Where is... thy brother?" asked the Lord, and Cain replied, "I know not: Am I my brother's keeper?" Ever since men have been denying such a responsibility, but nevertheless it exists.

Personal Influence
The "little ones" spoken of in this verse do not necessarily mean children, but those of weak faith. They believe in Jesus and his way of life, and try to demonstrate their belief as best they can. Too often, though, they look not at the perfect Pattern, but at men and women in the church. In such case one of two things usually happens: The weak ones feel justified in imitating the example of those whom they admire as leaders and as influential folks in the community; or, if they have fixed personal standards of right and wrong, they look upon those who do not measure up to them as hypocrites. Either alternative is so deplorable that we do not wonder at the strong words used by Jesus in condemning such a betrayal of confidence.

Habits That Hinder
In the figurative language to which his hearers were accustomed, Jesus spoke not only of the danger of being a stumbling block to others, but also of the danger of harming one's best self. The hand may represent a dishonest business; the foot some debasing association; the eye, some unhallowed desire. If a man, for the sake of gain, persists in a business which he knows to be dishonest and demoralizing, his soul shrinks to fit it.

The Semblance of Sin
There is much good advice for modern Christians in the last chapter of Paul's first letter to the church in Thessalonica. His friends were living in the midst of paganism and dreading a hard time to keep themselves "unspotted from the world." So the man who had won them to belief in Jesus Christ and the way of life he himself practiced took great pains to make this way clear to them. They were to avoid all forms of wrongdoing. We cannot, as Christians, afford to do things which look wrong to our neighbors.

Haines Is Host To His Managers

Edwin Yingst, manager of the Haines Shoe Store here, was one of the managers of stores who were guests of Haines the Shoe Wizard at a get-together held in York which included a business meeting, a banquet, talks by the shoe wizard and an interesting tour of inspection, on last Thursday.

The business meeting lasted about four hours during which many interesting items were discussed. During a talk on keeping fit, Mr. Haines advocated the taking of sponge baths and long walks as one of the secrets for his fine physical condition. He also discussed regular exercises such as swinging Indian clubs and dumb-bells.

Mr. Little, of Hanover, gave a very interesting talk on better business habits and means of increasing business. Talks also were given by Mr. Haines' sons, Mahlon and Stanley.

At 6:30 P. M., the managers were invited to a turkey dinner at Beer-man's restaurant in York. The dinner was delicious and was followed by a short entertainment. The dinner was strictly temperance.

Mr. Haines has many inviting places of interest to his visitors, including the Haines farms of 1,200 acres. He also has a ranch three miles north of the Lincoln Highway near York, where he has a museum of many old relics. The Haines prize-winning towl are kept on this ranch.

Another interesting place is the race track and stables where Haines fast harness horses are kept. He also has a park where the public can hold picnics.

SNOW-TRAILING . . . One phase of housing problem of defense workers is illustrated in this row of trailers, banked with snow, in which Portsmouth Navy Yard workers have settled down for winter at Eliot, Me. They get electricity, water, phone and sewer connections for $10 a month. It was five above zero when this picture was made.

gentleman he was in spite of his rather lowly occupation. No one ever saw him looking sour or acted out the pennies he seemed like ing ill tempered, so in good nature he seemed to be always the same. He was never heard to swear or ever talk but kindly to his horse. In a small community, as Lititz was then, things got talked around. It was known that Walker was rated as an active church member at Lancaster, and that too was in his favor. Financially he wasn't a failure and owned properties in his home city.

There was not so much money in circulation in the old days and when Walker handed over a nickel and some pennies it was like finding money.

Walker wasn't in business long enough to get an auto truck. He probably wouldn't have been satisfied without his faithful grey horse. We wonder how many readers there are who remember Walker, and can see the picture we have attempted to draw—boots, horse, bell and kindness, a man who made an impression in spite of his occupation.

GLADYS ERB FRACTURES ANKLE IN FALL ON ICE

Miss Gladys Erb, daughter of Mrs. Emma Erb, East Main Street, was painfully injured Saturday afternoon when she slipped and fell on the ice, sustaining a fracture of her right ankle.

At the time of the mishap, Gladys was with several companions on Cedar street at the school grounds. She was given first aid treatment by Dr. Margaret Elyer who ordered her removal to the Lancaster General hospital for x-ray pictures.

After the fracture was reduced she was returned to her home.

Local Bowlers Lose By Only Two Pins

The Stopani Wildcats of Lititz went down to defeat by the slim margin of two pins when they met the Coatesville Barbers in a bowling match at the Lancaster Elks Club over the week-end. The final score stood at 2,005 to 2,003.

According to the local bowlers, the absence of Norm Badorf, who has been going great guns at duck pins, was responsible for the defeat—although the Coatesville bowlers had another version of the till.

The complete score is as follows:

controls with consideration and endeavor to co-operate with them. The volunteer fireman was described as a "soldier of peace" and "our first line of home defense" by Arthur Espey, of Harrisburg, chief of the firemen's training school conducted by the commonwealth. Espey also paid tribute to the founders of the Lititz Fire Company and complimented the present members on carrying on the work of the company so successfully.

O. K. Bushong, Reading Railway station agent here, emphasized the need of precaution and safety, especially when reaching railroad crossings. Mr. Bushong cited numerous figures and statistics in driving home his point.

F. F. Bailey, supervising principal of the Warwick Township schools, also delivered an interesting talk in which he complimented members of the company for their work. Burgess Victor Wagner welcomed the group and extended a special welcome to a number of visiting firemen who attended as guests. Sol Strohm amiably served as toastmaster and had a great time handing out several dozen gifts and door prizes during the evening.

In his talk, Harry Way also highly complimented the work of the Ladies Auxiliary and explained to the firemen the work the ladies carried on during the past year.
