NOT PROFESSIONAL PART II.

The Summer was long and hot. Dr. Walter found it was as much as he could do to get every day's work well done in the heat and lack of energy which was the result of it.

After supper Frank and his cousin went into the garden to smoke. It was quite dark outside, and the light in the hall made Kitty's figure stand out brilliantly as she stood on the steps under the lamp in one of the red dresses she almost always wore.

Frank's guests arrived on the evening before the dance. The one of whom he had spoken—Mr. Marsham Brown—had staid with them before, but not for some time.

Dr. Walter laughed and looked at the little figure beside him, swinging in a hammock in anything but a sedate attitude, with a look no unmixed with admiration.

They found their brother outside. There was no renewal of acquaintance to be made between him and his cousin, for Frank Carlton was in London at rather frequent intervals, and rarely failed to do what he called "look up"

Dr. Walter took the little brown and drew it further into his arm. He was beginning to feel "Kitty's ways," as her friends called them very fascinating.

make me hopelessly idle and dissipated, I can arrange for a few more days." "Well, Madge, to-morrow week, Will that do, do you think?" cried Kitty, her eager face looking prettier than ever as she leaned on the table, playing with the sugar tongs.

"Well, I'll promise you they shall be useful as well as ornamental, Kitty," said Frank. "Madge, I suppose you could find room for four?"

It was a lovely early Autumn day with that curious, heavy stillness over everything which is, after a little while, almost saddening.

Dr. Walter looked, what he felt, disappointed, but he determined to spend the day in a walk to a ruin near, which he had long wished to see.

A QUESTION ANSWERED.

What claim has Whitmonday to obtrude itself into our social life with its merrymaking on the village green, its life and bustle in city and town?

In Europe, in England as well as on the continent, Pentecost is solemnized on two successive days and formerly extended over a period of three days and even longer.

Supposing a decree should go forth from the legislature and governor of this state to the effect that, hereafter, Whitmonday should not be observed as a holiday and that all manner of business should be transacted as usual, hotels and restaurants excepted.

The State Democratic convention on Wednesday approved the move in Congress for tariff reform.

Papers of the big cities devote more space to base ball than the proceedings of Congress.

Language, manners and religion are not readily changed by compulsory measures, and yet some well-meaning people propose to cure intemperance, as well as vice out of the moderate and, therefore, legitimate use of wine, beer and spirituous liquors.

Annually we gather round the graves of the heroes of war and hold solemn ceremony in memory of the Union's defenders.

Next Wednesday millions of people will gather in the cemeteries. The tombs will be bedecked with flags and flowers by comrades, prayers offered and orations and national songs will echo the devotions of those who now sleep their long sleep.

The Columbia Daily News is another of the few papers in the United States believing in and advocating prohibition.

a quarter of a century, and it will continue to move forward in the years to come.

Freedom is disappearing instead of advancing every time a restriction is established; to prohibit the eating, drinking or use of an article is what this ridiculous News would have its readers believe is freedom.

Yes, freedom is what all Americans ought to approve; they should not be led by the apostles of prohibition, but should demand that the abuse of anything—tobacco, liquors, etc.—which is not detrimental to society when temperately used, be discouraged by statute.

Last week a Philadelphia liquor dealer was sentenced for violation of the high license law, which imposes what are considered severe penalties.

Of the only real question which the two great parties have now to join issue upon, what leader is there in either who takes other than a financial and economic view?

Whit-Monday was not the festive day it used to be in Lancaster. The country people of to-day are not satisfied with the old-time customs, and instead of waiting for "Pingsas" they indulge at home the same social sports and pastimes their city cousins do.

Mrs. Elizabeth S. Shirk, of Reading, who recently removed from Ephrata, was robbed of $1,000 by a stranger she boarded.
