ZEPHYR'S DOLLAR.

"Mother," said Farmer Croft, "where is Zephyr?" Mrs. Croft looked sharply up from the butter she was working over in a wooden bowl.

"Where is Zephyr?" she repeated, "why, where should she be? How do I know. Staring out of the garret window, I suppose, or picking yellow jonquils at the foot of the garden, or mooning away her time in anything but good, solid work."

"No, uncle, I am not," Zephyr frankly admitted; "but it isn't your fault. It's the fault of circumstances and of myself, I suppose. I am like a fish out of water or a poor butterfly drowning in the sea."

"But, I tell you what, my girl," said the farmer cheerily, "the very next silver dollar that comes this way you shall have."

threshold they met an old woman with a prodigious cap-frill and spectacles like moons. "Here's the dollar we owe you folks for vinegar, Neighbor Croft," said she.

"Gently, mother; gently," said he. But Mrs. Croft's wrath was not so easily to be stemmed. When the avalanche of words was over, and honest Daniel looked around for his niece, Zephyr was gone.

"Of all things," said Mrs. Croft, "deliver me from good paupers." "Zephyr!" the good farmer called once more, as he neared the tall reeds and rushes that fringed the river shore.

"I saw it first," said one. "No, you didn't!" "I did!" "You didn't!" "Say, you!" both called in chorus to the farmer, and as he turned about each man went his way.

but Zephyr has come between us and the poorhouse—little quiet Zephyr, that you never had no patience with; and the dollar I gave her has been paid back with golden interest, eh, mother?"

What is defeat? Nothing but education; nothing but the first step to something better. No pleasure is comparable to the standing upon the vantage ground of truth.

The use of india rubber for erasing pencil marks was first suggested in our journal prior to 1742 by an academician named Magellan, a descendant of the great navigator.

Christian Endeavor Notes. As the Christian Endeavor Society has been misunderstood and misrepresented in some sections, the president of the United Society desires us to publish the following statement:

1. Each true Christian Endeavor Society by virtue of its very constitution and pledge must be loyal to its own church and must be under the control of that church alone, just as each Sunday-school.

For the first time women are being employed in Cologne to lay mosaic pavements, and are doing it very well. The prison population of England has fallen off of late years. Out of 113 prisons 51 have been altogether closed.

General News. Dr. F. W. Oliver, of Sioux City, took poison at Crescent, Iowa. His case is considered hopeless.

Executions and judgments amounting to $26,875 were entered in the Prothonotary's office at Doylestown on Saturday against Samuel B. Larzler, of Doylestown township.

A Second Gateau Caged. CINCINNATI, O., Nov. 15.—John S. Bell, ex-Chief of the Secret Service, Washington, who is now visiting in Cincinnati, confirms in very particular a report which has just leaked out here that a lunatic from Petersburg, Va., who imagined himself an unduly persecuted Southern Republican, was quietly arrested and lodged in an insane asylum in Washington May 23d last for trying to draw a 38-caliber revolver with which to shoot President Harrison while his carriage was passing down Pennsylvania avenue in the morning.

UNJUST CRITICISM.

Again has the Ephrata News resorted to its old tricks of misrepresentation. Its habit of doing that ought by this time to be broken, for the Record has upon several occasions referred to the offense. The maxim singular with the News, that a subject must be considered from one side only, merits condemnation by every journalist. To be fair and impartial one must view the surroundings of his text from every coil of vantage. An honest editor never does otherwise. Prejudices must be forgotten. If they are not the public will discover the deception. A journal that is hypocritical is not the kind people ought to read, and Editor Lefevre ought have learned ere this that his erratic opinions upon prohibition, frequently used in editorials on subjects having no connection whatever with his faith, do not make an intellectual meal for his patrons. This sweeping lunge at the note in our esteemed contemporary's eye is considered an act of charity. If it cures the News of distorting facts, or of ignoring the truth it will be doing service for a neighbor that deserves a better repute.

GOOD READING.

Several daily papers in Reading each Monday publish extracts of the more notable sermons preached in the churches on Sunday. The brief articles must be enjoyed, and the wonder is that such a department is not found in every newspaper. The New York Herald years ago devoted a page each Monday to give wide publicity to the gems from metropolitan pulpits. We see that the Baltimore Sun has begun to notice the sermons of that city's ablest preachers. It quotes the points of Rev. Warren J. Johnson's (formerly of Manheim) and Rev. A. H. Studebaker's last Sunday sermons. The latter, on the subject of "Personal Purity," directed these remarks to young men:

"Few people," he said, "think anything about the sanctity of the office. They regard it as a physical wonder, and thapsodize over its singular harmony and marvellous adaptation. To stand before it and say, 'this is the temple of the Holy Ghost,' and to consider the awful profanation which must ensue if it is defiled by sins of the flesh, occurs to very few. The consideration every man ought to have for his health, to place it on no higher plane, calls on all to refrain from those things inimical to it. God seems to watch over this which He has made in His own image with jealous care and visits visibly sins with prompt tokens of His displeasure. The student may assert that much of this proceeds from violation of known and immutable laws; that heredity demands its own and there is no escaping its claim. But who fixed those laws in the beginning, and who has seen to it that they have been kept in exercise? No one has a right to sap the forces with which his life has been supplied any more than he has a right to let all of them out by one thrust through his heart.

"Intelligence calls for purity; conscience, his Maker, his destiny, his fellows, his immortal being, all call for it. That which robs a man of all that constitutes him a moral and immortal being, that blunts his sensibilities and and paralyzes every noble aspiration, is a curse to be condemned and avoided. Young has a peculiar interest in this warning, because it is easier to form than to reform; easier to prevent than to cure. This is the time when habits which shall blight all after life find congenial soil and strengthen themselves at the expense of nature's very existence. Ridicule, too, is then at its best, and few young people can bear to be laughed at. Why has God given us such natures? To learn the glorious and valuable lesson of victory over self."

The young men who were not fortunate enough to hear the sermon can find plenty to ponder in the concise report of it in the newspaper. The truths therein expressed will improve the reader and instruct him to play the teacher for others. It is refreshing to turn from the maze of crimes and calamities, pictured monotonously, to a few lines so sober and edifying as the above.

THE DANGERS ARISING FROM public funerals in cases of contagious and infectious diseases are set forth in a circular issued by the State Board of Health, and a special appeal is made to clergymen to use their influence in putting an end to such dangerous demonstrations. One of the sections of a model ordinance prepared by the board as a guide for municipal bodies in forming their health law provides that "there shall not be a public or church funeral of any one who died of Asiatic cholera, smallpox, typhus fever, diphtheria, yellow fever, scarlet fever or measles." Ministers are requested to absolutely refuse to hold public services in such cases.

ALL ABOUT A HORSE TRANSACTION. D. Mcullen, attorney for Henry K. Engle, of Manheim borough, issued a writ of replevin on Wednesday to recover a bay mare valued at $65, now in the possession of Jacob Williams, living near White Oak. Engle, the plaintiff in this suit, loaned his animal to Jacob W. Diehm, of Pennville, some time ago, with the intention of effecting a trade with Jacob Williams, the defendant, who now refuses to return the steed to the alleged rightful owner.—"Examiner."

Remember the Dead. All persons in need of grave-stones or monuments for departed friends and friends (especially those who would like to have their work set before the winter sets in) are invited to call at the Manheim Marble Works, see the large and varied assortment in stock, and learn prices before engaging elsewhere. S. R. HANSEN, Manager.

The silence grew so dense that the organ struck up a "voluntary"—though an involuntary would have been far more appropriate to the painful situation. The bridegroom sat down; his high boot was tugged off by kind hearts and willing hands; the ring rolled forth to view, and simultaneously there was disclosed to the breathless congregation a gaping hole in the blushing bridegroom's stocking, which the good divine was thoughtful enough to pass off lightly with the pat remark: "Young man, it is time you were married."

This incident points a homely yet useful moral for the young man hovering about the flame of matrimony. When in doubt as to the best time, consult your bosomy. Should it display a tendency to open-work effects—or, like the galligaskins of a noted humorist, "a horrid chasm disclose"—there is no time to be lost in being to the person and taking steps to stop the rents. If a stitch in time, as has been credibly alleged, will obviate nine, the saving grace of a timely matrimonial stitch should exact a nine-fold strength in the conservation of your footgear; to say nothing of the satisfying consciousness of having wedded in the nick of time.

PEPPER AND SALT. No, thank you for your kind invitation. We have so many Thanksgivings invitations that it is impossible to be everywhere.

This Thanksgiving is going to be such a genuine, hearty, real, universal affair that the very turkeys are expected to take part in it.

There are indications of a glut of Thanksgivings turkeys in the market, and there has been a decided break in prices within a day or two.

The newspapers are trying to get some one to run for U.S. Senator in opposition to Don. Cameron. All the same, Don will get there as usual when the time comes.

John Weitzel, of Wichita, Kansas, is the spreading pest in that state. Last Friday night burglars entered his bank and stole $10,000, while his wife at the same time eloped with the leader of a choir.

If the railroads keep on at the rapid rate of wrecks they have had of late, people will avoid car-riding as much as possible. It is said the Reading Railroad Company already feels that its passenger traffic is decreasing, owing to its numerous wrecks.

The Board of Pardons has refused a pardon to "Tid" Brimmer, serving a sentence at Lancaster for arson. An outlaw such as Brimmer has proven to be, should be allowed to rot in prison here, he is not allowed to be removed. We have no mercy for men like Brimmer.

Early in the present generation of business men there were but few millionaires in this country. They were John Jacob Astor and Stephen Whitney, of New York; Nicholas Longworth, of Cincinnati; Stephen Girard, of Philadelphia, and William Gray, of Boston. Now there are 500 millionaires in New York alone.

The Farmers' Alliance organization is spreading rapidly in this state. They are organizing over in Berks in nearly every town and village on Friday evening they will do likewise at Ephrata. Next some one will be in Lititz to effect a branch organization and so it will keep on until every hamlet in the union will become acquainted with the Alliance.

When Theo. Helstund takes possession of the county treasurer's office on the first of January we hope to see that office run more for the convenience of the public than it now is. There has been much complaint that often when people had business there they found the door locked. Country people do not have the time to sit and wait until it suits the officials to come to open the doors. Reform is highly necessary in this direction.

Four Persons Killed. READING, Pa., Nov. 17.—A frightful boiler explosion and loss of life occurred at the cooper works of Truxler & Bro. at Merztown, this county, at six o'clock Monday morning, caused, it is said, by a defective boiler.

The injured are Charles Walborn, a joiner, aged 37, fatally; Samuel Epler, aged 43, badly scalded about hands and face; Alfred Epler, aged 25, engineer, slightly injured; Frederick Long 14, seriously scalded about face and legs; Charles Bortz, aged 20, scalded about face and hands; James Bauscher, aged 40, received two ugly gashes in the head, very serious; Pias Bauscher, aged 13, scalded about face and body; William Reppert, aged 30, terribly scalded about the face.

The boiler was thirty feet long and was torn into three pieces, one of which, twenty-three feet long, was hurled a distance of 150 yards. The three men killed were thrown 140 feet away and lay side by side. The bodies were not much mutilated. The injured were found in the debris and removed to their homes.

The mill was only partly wrecked, but the boiler house and shed are a mass of ruins, including the engine. The loss to the firm is estimated at $3,500. The works were owned by E. H. & O. H. Trexler.

On Credit. To sell or not to sell? That is the question. Whether it is better to send the goods And take the risk of doubtful payment, Or to make sure of what is in possession, And, by selling, hold the cash.

Uriah White, brother of F. R. White, a well known citizen of Manheim, arrived in Lancaster from Peoria, Illinois, at 4 1/2 A. M. Tuesday. Mr. White left Lancaster thirty-one years ago and came here to visit his old home nine years ago. He was at ways a robust healthy man up to last Friday when he had a stroke of paralysis. The entire right side of his body has been effected and he is almost utterly helpless. One brother came east with him and they were met at the station by F. R. White and another brother. The invalid was taken to the City hotel where he was cared for until the 7.35 train left for Manheim.

Geo. Long, residing on Prussian street, died on Wednesday morning, aged 72 years. Deceased was in failing health for some time.

Daniel Fasig and his son Monroe, of Akron, Ohio, are visiting relatives and friends in town for several weeks. He was 16 years ago that Mr. Fasig left this place.

Mr. H. W. Miller was in Lancaster over Sunday, the guest of Mr. George Graybill.

All Around Us. Postoffice Inspector Darby will recommend the appointment of letter carriers for Columbia borough.

Mrs. Anna Levan, of Windom, this county, received a Government check for $245.80 for back pension allowed for her husband's death.

The Grand Jury in the United States District Court, Philadelphia, on Monday found a true bill against Martin Rudy, of Lancaster, for devising a scheme to defraud and using the mails to carry it out.

Harry McCormick, a member of a band of tramps who have committed many outrages in Pennsylvania, pleaded guilty to arson in court at Lancaster and was sentenced to seven years in the Eastern Penitentiary.

A. F. Hloster, attorney for Samuel O. Prutz, issued an execution on Monday afternoon against Charles S. Bender, farmer, of Rapho, for $200.

A fire in C. H. Fiey's shoe store at Lancaster last Thursday night damaged the building to the extent of about $500 and caused considerable loss on the stock, all of which is covered by insurance. The fire is supposed to have been caused by hot ashes left on the second floor in the building.

John Kemmerer, the oldest person in Lebanon county, died on Tuesday night on his farm, two miles from Myerstown. He was 97 years old, and had been blind many years.

This week P. W. Hull and Ellis Bard's trials are taking place in Philadelphia, charged with wrecking the Lincoln bank. The case was called for trial on Wednesday afternoon.

Judge Bauder presided. United States District Attorney Read and Assistant District Attorney Beck appeared for the Government. Messrs Brown & Housel represented Mr. Bard, and Mr. Hull was defended by J. L. Steunzel, of Lancaster, and ex-United States District Attorney John K. Valentine, of Philadelphia. When the case against Bard was called for trial, the defendant entered a plea of guilty to the indictment. Mr. Hull entered a plea of not guilty, and a jury was called to try the case.

Bard, who pled guilty, is now in the custody of the United States Marshall. The minimum penalty for the crime to which he entered his plea is imprisonment for five years. The penalty for the conviction of an accomplice is the same.

Years ago boys' herabouts went skating on Thanksgiving day. They will hardly do so this year.

WANAMAKER'S. at two or three times the price—a little less weight, a little less fineness, that's about all they fall short. Look at these! Camel Hair Plaid over-plaided with gay streaks of Astrakhan. 36 inches wide. One of the most desirable of the whole half-dollar line, and in sight yesterday for the first.

Many of these choicest styles are nowhere else in town.

There's a buzz of busy buying all through the Upholstery Store. As marked in the Table Cover quarter as anywhere. High quality and low cost, yoked, are what do it.

Chenille Stand Covers, 50 and 75c. Chenille Table Covers, $1.25 to $4.50. Chenille Piano Covers, $4.85 to $5.00. Imported Tapestry Covers, $1.50 to $2.50. Victoria Velour Covers, $2 to $12. Jute Velour Covers, $2.75 to $10. Jute Velour Squares for stands, 40c to $1.25. Chinese and Japanese Embroidered Silk Scarfs, $1 to $35. Same in Satin, $4.50 to $50. Silk Table Covers, $9 to $12. Satin Covers, $6 to $15.

And so it goes; the things you want at less than you expect to pay—if you know the market.

The most fascinating spot here—to many—is the Book Store. This season for Fresh Books and new dresses for old Books will surpass any Winter of the past. Books come with the Holidays. But they are making their advent already with all the contrasts of thought and feeling, prose and poetry, fact and fiction, and diversities of dress that will amuse and surprise.

Here is Ward McAllister's book, "Society as I Have Found It." Perhaps the salaries of Puck have advertised the book until you want to make its acquaintance. The experiences with it are odd. People ask for it with a curious, half amused expression that implies a doubt as to whether they really want it; and possibly they ask as they read, "Is it to be taken seriously or as a joke?" Price $1.50.

Two Florentine editions of George Elliot's "Romola" are out, two volumes in paste-board cases, your choice at $4.50; two books of Eugene Field put up in small paper boxes, "A Little Book of Profitable Tales," and "A Little Book of Western Verse," $1.80 for the two, or 90c each; "Port Tarascon," by Daudet, $1.90; Anna Katherine Green's new book "A Matter of Millions," $1.10; "Samantha Among the Brethren," $1.65.

These Books all fell under a single glance of the eye. They are put down here to tell you what they may catch a glance. Many other single glances will tell you more than this.

Our new Book Catalogue—96 pages—names over 5000 titles. Free to anyone.

But if you really want to know Books go to BOOK NEWS, December number of BOOK NEWS will tell you of every one of the Holiday Books of this season, and show you more than SEVENTY pictures taken from them. One hundred and twenty big pages, telling of nothing but Books and giving the fair price every time. December Book News is a grand Holiday Book itself.

And the price? FIVE CENTS! You're likely to save ten times that on the first Book you buy.

A WORD IN SEASON.

Strawbridge & Clothier desire to say a word in season to those who intend to make purchases for the coming Christmas (and who does not?)

Our great stock is bountifully supplied with things both useful and ornamental, suited for Christmas gifts. We have a large force of skilled, quick-witted people, who stand ready to send you prices, descriptions, suggestions and samples, when practicable, of goods suitable for the holidays as well as other seasons. They only wait upon your orders, and we cordially invite you to avail yourselves of their ability and experience in suggesting or in carrying out your suggestions in reference to holiday purchases. At a later date, stocks are apt to be broken, the most desirable articles closed out and little time left to re-arrange your plans. By ordering early, or at least by deciding upon your list of gifts by correspondence with our Mail Order Department, anxiety may be avoided and more satisfactory service rendered.

THE OLD LITITZ SNUFF MILL.

A Bit of Local History, or Reminiscences of Some of the Oldest Inhabitants. Mr. Martin Hansen, the inventor of the widely celebrated aromatic snuff, which cheered the hearts of our great-grandparents, and was then universally accepted panacea for most of the ills that flesh is heir to, came originally from Denmark in his youth.

The trip about the country was also extended in Ham's time. With his wagon and two iron horses, he drove as far as the Maryland border on the south, Harrisburg, Hollidaysburg, Carlisle on the west, Lancaster, Strasburg, Paradise, Reading, Hamburg, Lebanon, Frederickburg, then known as Stumpstown, Pine Grove, Pottsville, &c.

Here the former site first began to support himself by preparing snuff in various ways, for which purpose he had his tobacco ground in the old card mill by Gibbs's dam.

For about ten years the snuff business flourished greatly. Ham paid off his debts, and made money according to the estimate of the time and community.

After a season of prosperity the snuff business began to decline. The old generation, the inveterate snuff-takers, were laid in their graves, and a younger generation grew up, which knew not the delights of their grandmothers' snuff-box and adopted other vices.

WILLIAM WARREN.

Touching Tribute to the Memory of One of the Old Time Commonwealth.

From "The Autobiography of Joseph Jefferson," in "The Century," we quote as follows: "James Wallace, Charles Matthews, Fechter, Walter Montgomery, Peter Richings (dear me, I am the only one left!) and many others. Such jokes, old and new, such reminiscences, foreign and domestic, tales of the...

"Again I recall Warren as one of the bright features of a memorable feast. Mrs. James F. Fields at one end of the table and her husband at the other. Beside William Warren sat Dr. Oliver Wendell Holmes, while Mr. Longfellow sat facing myself—I, the youngest man of those assembled, and greatly pleased to be one of such a group. Here was table talk indeed—a feast of wit as well as of viands. As I think now of that interesting day I seem to listen to the brilliancy of Fields, the wisdom of Longfellow and the wit of Holmes. Then Warren modestly joins in the conversation, planning his words to the theme under discussion—so adroitly, too, that no joke is suspected until the climax. This is indeed the very art and perfection of an anecdote.

"Time rolled on and we met quite often, always in the summer. To sit and talk with Warren under the trees was ever a treat to me. He had known me since I was a boy, and now he knew me as a grandfater. No lack of retrospect and reminiscence with such acquaintances!

"Then came the fiftieth anniversary of his debut. I was not there to see it, but I know of it as though the scene had passed before me. Thousands flocked to witness it. Gray haired men who had been taken to see him when they were boys hurried to bid for places that they might do him honor. There was a loving cup from those who cherished him; flowers from a whole city; a token of affection from his old comrades. I saw him shortly after this and there was a shade of sadness in his face. He seemed to feel that all was over. A laurel wreath will cheer his wearer when it is bestowed on one who is in the zenith of his victory, but it weighs heavily upon a retired hero.

"William Warren bore up bravely under the burden of seclusion; but time and the loss of that more than magnetism which is imbibed by an actor from the warm appreciation of his audience, and which had stimulated him for so many years, gradually told upon his health, and then his bright mind faded and he passed away. Boston's best sons and daughters gathered to witness the ceremonies that attended upon his final rest. Those who had lived and wept with him in his art showed, by their presence and unexpressed emotion, how they were saddened by so great a loss.

"Relatives and friends, who stood in groups about the grave, were overcome with sorrow. John Gilbert stood gazing into the grave with streaming eyes and a dazed look. He felt that the time was fast approaching when he would join his comrade."

A New Gas Meter.

A new gas meter is being made in considerable numbers in Manchester, England. By its aid a pennyworth of gas can be obtained by the consumer. The penny is dropped into a slot and pushed home by a piston or pusher, after which it drops into a locked drawer or receptacle. While the penny is being pushed through it releases a star wheel which is operated by fingers or pawls fixed upon the drum. At the same time a certain valve by which the admission of gas is controlled is raised to a certain height. The revolution of the drum moves this valve down at a speed proportionate to that of the passing gas, and by the time the quantity which can be sold for a penny is delivered the valve closes, shutting off the supply.

As soon as the gas is supplied the meter drum is again locked by the detention of the star wheel. A nickel or penny worth of gas is being consumed the pusher is raised to repeat the action without a coin no additional supply can be got, and the introduction of another penny insures the valve being opened as much further as is necessary to supply that valve of gas, although the remainder of the first portion remains to be delivered. The mechanism is well designed to prevent any fraudulent use being made of it, and is very simple and easily adapted to various requirements.—New Orleans Picayune.

Some Causes of Headache. Neuralgic headaches are the expression of an immense number of irregularities and diseases. Decayed teeth are frequent causes, and in not a few instances severe headaches of this sort are clearly due to teeth so slightly decayed that only a dentist can detect the defect.

Headaches, especially those in which the pain is felt most in the forehead, are frequently caused by inequalities in the eye. And often very slight defects, scarcely appreciable to the victim, are sufficient to cause them. Many persons have one normal eye, while the other is slightly abnormal.

In such cases there is considerable strain if the eyes are used much in reading, which is especially liable to cause headache. The only remedy in these cases is, of course, a proper pair of glasses. Headache from defective sight is not always limited to the region of the forehead, and in not a few instances is frequently associated with it.—Boston Herald.

Death of Dumas' Cook. At Le Puy, near Dieppe, there has died an old Russian named Vassil, who in his time obtained considerable celebrity as the cook of the elder Dumas. His position in the household of the great fictionist was by no means a sinecure, for it is recorded that when the extravagant and open handed author of "Monte Cristo" was hard up Vassil had to concoct culinary dishes on next to nothing. The Vassil was always equal to the occasion, and was always punctual to the minute with his courses. When the great Alexander died at his villa at Le Puy, in 1870, Vassil was paid off handsomely by Alexander Dumas fils. He then retired from private employment, and opened a restaurant near the abode of his former master. This establishment was patronized by tourists, chiefly out of curiosity.—Pall Mall Gazette.

A Countryman Bursts Paper Bags.

He boarded a Ninth avenue elevated train at Fifty-ninth street. Linen dust, or broad brimmed straw hat, a bulging gray umbrella, green inside, grasped firmly by the middle, hands like boxing gloves and feet like a couple of hams showed plainly that he was a stranger in New York. He looked 30, but acted like a 13-year-old boy. Along the aisle of the car were a lot of paper peanut bags, thrown there by a party of small boys.

As the stranger moved toward his seat he deliberately scooped and gathered up all these bags, and as he sat down a cherubic smile of satisfaction overspread his countenance. He carefully smoothed out each one and placed it over his knee, pocketing an occasional stray peanut. His operations were watched with interest by his neighbors, and also his smile, which grew more supremely happy as the moments passed. An occasional chuckle could be heard.

When everything was arranged to his satisfaction he picked up the bags one by one, raised them to his mouth, filled them with wind, and then holding each at arm's length brought his boxing glove hand down on it with the force of a pile driver, making such a report that the windows shook, men started and women gasped.

"When this interesting operation had been performed several times, and the supply of bags remained apparently as large as ever, the passengers began to expostulate. A woman across the aisle timidly asked: "Will you please stop that, sir?" He only stared at her in surprise.

"When are you going to stop that infernal racket?" growled his huge whiskered neighbor. "Why, it's lots of fun," chuckled the other.

Finally the gateman came in and told him he would have to stop that "what?" said he; "when I come down to the city I hev some fun, an' when I pay my five pennies fare, can't I do as I want to?" He was informed that he could not in that car.

So he gathered up his bags, got up, and as he moved away he was heard to mutter: "Well, I s'wore, this the durndest town I ever see!"—New York Tribune.

A Cheap Light. W. J. Newton, an Englishman, has invented what is alleged to be the cheapest light ever known, and yet "a light as intense and as accurate in its illumination of colors as the sun at noonday." It is claimed that a five hundred candle power light of this kind in question can be run at the nominal cost of a half penny an hour. The light consists of a peculiar tape that is fed by a simple clockwork. In point of intensity it is not surpassed by electricity. Its light is much softer and far easier to the eyes. It feeds itself, requires neither pipes, wires nor other connections, and in size may be produced from three hundred to seven thousand candle power.—New York Telegram.

SHOE BARGAINS! LADIES' $1.50 SHOES FOR $1.25! SIX DIFFERENT STYLES.

Bright Dongola, in Opera, Square and Common Sense Toes, and Pebble, in Opera, Square and Common Sense Toes. These Shoes I bought very early, before the advance in prices and in very large quantities for cash. Taking these two points into consideration it can be easily understood how cheap I could buy them. This line I have been selling at $1.50, but, as competition is so strong I have decided to reduce the whole line (not a few styles or odd sizes only), all sizes, to $1.25 knowing that I now have the Best Line and Largest Assortment of $1.25 shoes in the City.

How readily I could sell these Shoes at $1.50, and give with every purchase a pair of Cheap Rubbers, a Cheap Chrome or Oil Painting, a cheap Set of Jewelry, or any other article which should be purchased in any other store but as shoe store; but the days of giving articles, except giving the Best Value for the Least Money, which, as my customers know, has always been my aim and object.
